Sanctions Possible On Quebec–Liberal

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator Eugene Forsey warned Monday that Ottawa could impose economic sanctions on Quebec if Premier Rene Levesque resorted to illegal or unconstitutional means of trying to pull his province out of Confederation.

"If Mr. Levesque tried an Ian Smith on us, there are always economic sanctions . . . and Ottawa is a lot closer to Quebec than London is to Salisbury," Forsey told the Rotary Club of Ottawa.

Forsey—who qualified all his remarks by saying they were strictly his own opinions and not those of the government, the Liberal party or the Senate—was referring to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Britain responded to Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence in 1965 with economic sanctions which failed to cripple the Rhodesian economy.

Forsey, a recognized constitutional expert, also warned Quebec that the only legal way for it to secede is through an amendment to the British North America Act (BNA), the country's constitution.

Such an amendment could only be passed by the British Parliament at the request of the federal government, Forsey said, adding that he doubts Ottawa would make the request without approval from all or nearly all of the provinces.

Forsey said a legal attempt by Quebec to break away from the rest of the country would raise complex constitutional issues that require basic, concrete answers now.

For instance, Ottawa could argue that a separate Quebec would have no constitutional right to keep the Ungava area because it was given to the province, not to a separate state. Ungava includes the James Bay hydro-electric power project, a crucial factor to the future of the Quebec economy.

Quebec would also find that negotiating with the U.S. on the St. Lawrence Seaway issue would be "a whole lot tougher" than negotiating with what is left of Canada, he said.

As well, Quebec would have to contend with the establishment of a land link between the Atlantic provinces and the rest of Canada.

Forsey said he could not imagine the country settling for an arrangement that would leave it partitioned like West and East Pakistan (now Bangladesh).

He warned that it is "absolutely essential" for Quebec to work out now the precise terms and conditions of a legal secession.

Wanted: Right Man

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Trudeau government is having a hard time finding the right Quebecer to sit on its new national unity task force.

After five weeks of fruitless searching, the vacancy is becoming something of an embarrassment, according to informed sources.

A "high profile" Quebecer is being sought but two or three people have already turned the job down, one source said.

The unity task force set up July 5 by Prime Minister Trudeau is co-chaired by former Anti-Inflation Board chairman Jean-Luc Pepin and former Ontario Premier John Robarts.

The unit, which has a wide mandate to "enhance Canadian unity," is to have one member from each of the five Canadian regions — only the Quebec region is unrepresented at this time.

It has been reported that the government wanted former Quebec cabinet minister Claude Castonguay on the task force but that he was unable to accept.

Speculation, therefore, is that other Quebecers approached for the job would feel they were only second best and shy away from the post.

The names of those who rejected the Quebec post or who are now under consideration are being guarded as closely as a potential cabinet appointment and it appears unlikely that anyone will be named until after the prime minister returns from his summer holiday late in August.

Pepin said last month it was obvious that it would be more difficult to find a Quebec representative — since the unity task force is part of the federal government's response to the election of the pro-independence Parti Quebecois.

FLYING PIG ROUND-UP

NETHERAVON, England (Reuter) — An army helicopter pilot used his machine Monday to tackle an unusual mission — rounding up 110 pigs which escaped from a crashed truck.

Sgt. Alf Elphenstone, a former stunt pilot, was on a routine training flight from the army base here when he saw the pigs.

After a chat with police he flew over the animals, driving them towards farmhands. The pigs were loaded on to another vehicle for their journey to a bacon factory.

MEDIATION FAILS

BCGEU Gears For Strike Vote

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

An effort to mediate a settlement between the provincial government and 33,000 public service employees has failed and the union will start a strike vote Aug. 28.

The B.C. Government Employees Union said in a statement Monday the government's "unwillingness to make any moves on the major items in dispute" made further mediation talks impossible.

The strike vote will end with a Sept. 11 meeting and the results should be known soon after.

Mediator Ken Albertini met both parties four times last week and withdrew Friday.

BCGEU general secretary John Fryer said earlier this month that he didn't think mediation would settle the dispute and that it would only be resolved with a strike.

The BCGEU has decided that if the members do vote for a strike, one sector of the public service will be picked as a strike target.

The 2,500 employees in the liquor retail stores have volunteered to walk off the job but a union spokesman said Monday that was only one of several possibilities.

Those who are not on strike will be assessed a certain amount, which will then go into a strike fund for those off the job, the spokesman said.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe hinted earlier this month that the government would lock out public service employees except those in essential services if the BCGEU begins selective strike action.

The union said Monday Albertini brought about agreement on a few contentious items but not the major ones involving the basic bargaining system and a cost of living allowance clause.

The union had such a clause in its last master agreement, which expired July 31, but says the government doesn't want such protection in the next contract.

The union also says the government wants to abolish the two-tiered system of bargaining for public service employees. The employees bargain for a master agreement covering matters common to all workers and then individual all component agreements for issues of concern to particular groups.

The BCGEU statement Monday said the government's proposals "would seriously weaken or abolish a number of other key clauses already in the contract."

The wage issue is still unresolved with the union rejecting a government proposal for an increase of 4½ per cent in the first year and three per cent in the second.

NEWS BRIEFS

New Conflict Case

Leonard Bawtree, Socred MLA for Shuswap, is the latest member to ask a special house committee to decide whether he breached the B.C. Constitution Act by accepting $2,000 from the government for installing cattle guards on Crown-owned range land. See story on Page 17.

Support Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is attempting to win support for the new Panama Canal treaty from both former president Ford and former secretary of state Henry Kissinger. See story on Page 3.

Iran Rocked

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — An earth tremor measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale rocked the eastern Iranian city of Mashad and surrounding areas today.

Bakeries Fined

MADRID (UPI) — Acting swiftly in Spain's "bread scandal," the government today levied heavy fines on bread factory owners and ordered the arrest of the three top officials of the bakery industry.

Pesticide Safety Tests Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — As many as 200 chemicals used in pesticides, food additives, packaging materials and drugs might be pulled off the market because of questions about the validity of long-term safety tests performed by a U.S. firm, the federal health department said Monday.

A spokesman for the department said it now is tracing companies which have had their products tested by Industrial Biotest Laboratories (IBT) of Northbrook, Ill.

The spokesman said if there are soubts about the validity of the IBT chronic long-term toxicity testing — done to screen chemicals for the potential to cause cancer, birth defects or genetic damage — then the manufacturer will be forced to pull the compound off the market and retest it.

The spokesman said such tests can take two to five years and cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. For example, he said, the chronic toxicity testing for saccharin done recently by the federal health department cost $300,000 and took three years.

He said individual decisions will have to be made by department experts about every IBT-tested compound. He estimated at least 200 chemicals will be affected, and did not know how long it will take the department to assess the situation.

Also affected will be approval for use of new chemicals tested by IBT, the spokesman said. This might be a costly delay for the drug industry which spends an estimated $18 million to bring a new drug to market.

This is the second incident involving questionable long-term safety testing of chemicals. Last year, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration charged that a major pharmaceutical company, G. D. Searle Co. of Skokie, Ill., withheld some longterm test results to win marketing approval for two new drugs and an artificial sweetener.

ICBC Paid After Bungle

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Insurance Corp. of B.C. head Norman Bortnick told the legislature's public accounts committee today two of the three controversial claims involving government backbencher George Kerster (Coquitlam) were paid because ICBC mishandled the cases.

Bortnick flatly denied that the two 1976 claims made by New Westminster driver Leslie Wood were paid because of pressure by Kerster.

But he admitted the decision to pay had been made because of intervention by the Socred MLA.

Bortnick said Kerster visited him in his Vancouver office to discuss the Wood claim but made no threats and asked for no favors.

Kerster's involvement in the case, he said, "was an inquiry about what the company was doing about the claim . . .) what Mr. Kerster did was draw it to my attention.

"He said: "What do you intend to do?"

Bortnick said ICBC suspected there had been a fraud perpetrated by Wood in both claims, "but for two or three months we had done nothing, we had let the claims sit."

"But the man (Wood) lied," stated Gary Lauk (NDP-Vancouver Centre).

"We couldn't prove that," said Bortnick, " . . . the claimant was given the benefit of the doubt."

MIRACLE SINKS, ROLLS

Sealand's ailing baby killer whale gave her nursemaids another start Monday night when she suddenly sank to the bottom of the pool and rolled over.

But before Miracle even had a chance to right herself, a crew of three volunteers keeping watch over her jumped in and brought her back to the surface.

Drug Rings Cracked

The Greater Victoria drug squad has cracked two major drug rings operating on southern Vancouver Island, one dealing in marijuana, the other in MDA.

Four persons have been arrested and a fifth is being sought in connection with police raids carried out Monday and today in Victoria, Duncan, Ladysmith and Nanaimo.

A drug squad spokesman said 150 pounds of marijuana worth $59,000 on the street was seized from the trunk of a car in the 200-block Cadillac Monday.

Robert Charles Barker, 29, of Colwood and Richard Lee Beard, 38, a U.S. citizen living on Denman Island, appeared in provincial court in Victoria today charged with conspiracy to traffic in marijuana and trafficking in marijuana.

They were remanded without plea to Wednesday.

Meanwhile officers carried out simultaneous searches at 7 a.m. today in Nanaimo, Ladysmith and Duncan and arrested two men.

Arthur James Williams, 53, and Raymond Albert Ridge, 30, both of Ladysmith, were to appear in provincial court in Duncan charged with conspiracy to traffic in MDA and MDA-hydrochloride and trafficking in the drugs.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a third man whose name has not been released.

The police spokesman said the arrests came after more than a year's undercover police investigation.

Some drugs were seized but it is not known how much.

Sprinkling Banned

Sidney has placed a total ban on non-essential water use like lawn sprinkling or car washing as concern mounts over a possibile water shortage.

The penalty for violations is a maximum of 30 days in jail or a $200 fine or both.

Town administrator G. S. Logan said council hopes residents will co-operate during the emergency and fines will not be necessary.

The restrictions take effect immediately. No restrictions have been ordered for the Victoria area. See story Page 15.

NO YARDS ON METRIC

Oak Bay aldermen accept that metrification — like death and taxes — is inevitable.

Monday night, however, aldermen decided to delay amendments that would see a half-dozen municipal bylaws go metric.

The reason: aldermen want to know what benefits metric bylaws will bring.

While agreeing to amend streets and traffic bylaw to set the new speed limit of 50 kilometres an hour, council delayed introducing metric measurements for things like fences and lot sizes.

"It's Napoleon's revenge," declared a tongue-in-cheek Ald. John Goult, who also said the British had managed to colonize the world with imperial weights and measures.

Council tabled all the metric amendments, except streets and traffic, until engineer Geoff White presents a report.

Pipeline Shut Down

DELTA, Alaska (AP) — The trans-Alaska oil pipeline was shut down Monday night after an oil spill at Pump Station 9, a spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said today.

It was the second time the pipeline has been officially shut down since oil reached the Valdez terminal.

Alyeska spokesman John Ratterman said Pump Station 9 was shut down about 7:30 p.m. Monday after a small amount of oil spilled outside the building. He said there was a "substantial amount" of oil in the pump building.

City Growing Again

The residential exodus from Victoria has halted and the population is growing again, according to a survey by the Capital Regional District.

The survey of seven major moving companies shows 143 families have moved into the Victoria area during the first seven months this year while 137 families moved out.

In the spring, a spot check of the same showed there were 10 families moving out for every four coming in at that time.

The report showed 260 families came to Victoria in 1976 and 195 moved out. In 1975, 378 families moved in and 290 moved out.

The report did not indicate the total numbers of people involved in the moves.

The Capital Regional District released the report today without comment.

Meanwhile, Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Alan Emery said the turn-around is "gratifying" but the inflow is still quite small.

"It is far too early for celebrations," he said. "There is still a shortage of jobs in Victoria."

He said the survey deals with numbers but does not indicate, for example, whether all those moving in are retired and those moving out are people looking for work.

"This good news should not interfere with the campaign to bring more jobs to Victoria."

Emery said it is vital local municipalities realize the economy is still in trouble and they co-operate to make land available for industrial development.

"That is still the most important consideration and it is double important since the tragic fire at Ogden Point."

Calif. Hit By Floods

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Vestiges of Hurricane Doreen lashed southern Californian deserts with rainstorms and 80-kilometre-an-hour winds Monday, flooding four highways and washing away a large section of the major artery linking Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

"Interstate 15 northbound is just completely washed away about 45 miles north of Barstow," said California highway patrol Sgt. Terry Hunt.

Riots in Birmingham

At least 58 policemen were injured as the demonstrators threw bricks and bottles at police who formed a human barricade to keep them away from the front meeting in this central England city.

Hundreds of demonstrators, most of them minority youths, later stoned a police station, looted shops and smashed the windows of police cars in the centre of the city. Ten of them were arrested.

The clashes followed a night in which the left-wing demonstrators hurled stones and bottles at police in Britain's second political street battle in three days.

At least 12 policemen, including two women officers, were hurt as they struggled to hold back about 400 demonstrators, most of them from the Socialist Workers' party. The fighting erupted outside a school where the National Front was holding a meeting before a byelection in the area.

B.C. FILM PUSH

The B.C. government has hired a man to promote the use of the province by film production companies, it was announced Monday.

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said University of Victoria graduate Wolfgang Richter has been appointed co-ordinator of a program designed to encourage television and film production in B.C. He will be paid $19,000 a year.

McCarthy said Richter will be charged with the "aggressive promotion of British Columbia's excellent physical and human resources to convince national and international film and television producers to locate their productions in our beautiful province."

The minister said a production company can infuse hundreds of thousands of dollars into the economy of a local area in which it is shooting film.

"We will continue to provide location guidance and all possible assistance to film companies to ensure a smooth production when they arrive to work here," said McCarthy.

Bid to Keep $39M Made by Chabot

Mines Minister Jim Chabot moved Monday to protect $39.6 million in collected taxes that the mining industry in B.C. wants to recoup.

Chabot introduced the Mineral Land Tax Amendment Act which he said is intended to clarify the wording of the preceding act and keep the mining industry from trying to win back taxes paid in 1974, 1975 and 1976, through B.C. Supreme Court actions.

The bill was introduced on the same day Chabot said in a news release the value of mineral production in B.C. during 1976 hit a record $1.5 billion.

"This is an increase of $156 million, or 10.3 per cent, over 1975," the minister said.

By categories, metals represent 42% per cent of the total production, followed by coal at 19.6 per cent and petroleum and natural gas at 27.7 per cent.

The minister said copper continues to be the most important metal, and the total quantity produced was 263 million kilograms, an increase of more than five million kilos over the previous year. Prices averaged $1.44 a kilo.

Chabot noted that 7.5 million tons of coal, with a mine value of $239 million, were shipped "in spite of lengthy strikes at both major producing mines" during 1976.

Oil production increased four per cent to 2.4 million cubic meters valued at $117 million.

Chabot said "fuzziness ... ambiguous wording," used by the NDP when it drew up the Mineral Land Tax Act in 1974 had led to court actions that threatened to jeopardize the entire $39.6 million in tax revenue from 1974, '75 and '76.

The Social Credit government repealed the NDP's tax act last year.

But Chabot said the mining industry is challenging the constitutionality of the original act, and questioning the power of the government to have ever implemented the tax.

He said a decision in the mining industry's favor could have resulted in the government having to pay back all the tax collected under the bill.

"But I don't think they will proceed now," said Chabot.

Voluntary Curbs By CLC Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — It is unlikely that Canadian Labor Congress leaders will commit the labor movement to voluntary wage restraints in exchange for early removal of compulsory controls, steelworkers director Gerard Docquier suggested today.

"Personally I think the credibility of our organization would be in a poor state of affairs if we were to agree to restraints," Docquier said in an interview before the 30-member CLC executive council went into a closed meeting to discuss conditions set by Prime Minister Trudeau for early removal of wage and price controls.

"I don't think that the membership of our union would go along with it," said Docquier, national director of the United Steelworkers of America. The union, with 196,000 members in Canada, is one of the largest CLC affiliates.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver the Employers' Council of B.C. said Monday it supports in principle the federal government's proposal for a phased method of anti-inflation denontrol, but would prefer a decontrol date of Jan. 2, 1978, rather than Oct. 14, 1977.

"The reason for this preference is that the initial agreements to be negotiated would fall predominantly in the private sector and should reflect the constraints of the marketplace, an important consideration as these settlements will set the pattern," the council said in a news release.

Somalia Placed On War Footing

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Afro-Arab nations are increasing efforts to avert an all-out war between Ethiopia and Somalia despite slim chances for success, diplomatic sources said today.

Since Somali forces attacked Ethiopia's southeast Ogaden desert region last June, the dispute between the neighbors on the horn of Africa has deteriorated rapidly until diplomatic sources judge it to be on the verge of full-scale war.

It escalated Monday when Somalia accused Ethiopian warplanes of bombing northern Somalia. Somali President Siad Barre put his country on a virtual war footing and warned an Ethiopian invasion was near.

The Soviet Union — the main arms supplier to both socialist regimes — has been trying to keep the friendship of both antagonists and has been stepping up efforts to avert an all-out war, the sources said.

African Arab nations belonging to the 46-member Organization of African Unity also are trying to mediate a settlement, the sources said, despite the failure of a recent mediation bid by an OAU commission in Lebreville, Gabon.

But the diplomats said they believe there is little chance the peace initiatives will succeed at this stage in the confrontation.

China has re-entered the big-power struggle with an offer of military supplies to Somalia.

Sources in Beirut said the offer was first made in May and repeated last month.

The Chinese offer provided for spare parts and replacements for such Somali equipment as the Soviet-made T-45 tank and the MiG-17 jet fighter planes.

The Somalis have not so far committed themselves to accepting the Chinese proposal, the sources added. The Somalis are being wooed with offers of "defensive weapons" from a host of countries wanting to curb Soviet influence in the horn, including the United States, Britain and France, they said.

Library Extension Sought

The Greater Victoria Public Library board will have to ask the provincial government to extend its Aug. 19 deadline for deciding if it will rent space for a new central library.

The need for delay surfaced Monday when Saanich council, after two hours of debate, reached a stalemate. Council voted 4-4 on whether or not to approve the board's proposal to rent space in the building under construction at Broughton and Blanshard.

Saanich will now have to wait for its Sept. 6 meeting, when Ald. Robert Cameron returns from vacation, to break the tie. The vote then is expected to favor the rental proposal because Cameron represents Saanich on the library board and has said earlier that he is for the rental scheme.

Oil Spill Hits Powell River

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Emergency crews were working today to prevent a 2.4-million-gallon spill of heavy bunker C oil at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s pulp mill from reaching the harbor.

Company spokesman Tim Williamson said the spill occurred Monday when a pipe attached to a 60,000 barrel storage tank on the mill grounds ruptured.

When the accident was discovered about 6 p.m., nearly half the tank's contents had escaped.

Much of the oil was contained within a dyked area around the tank, but it had begun to leak where a series of steam pipes passed through the dyke.

Emergency crews were unable to repair the broken oil pipe. Efforts were concentrated on preventing the oil, which was flowing downhill toward Powell River harbor, from reaching the water.

Tins of Salmon Sink

Close to a million tins of salmon spilled into Queen Charlotte Sound Saturday when a forklift truck smashed through the side of a barge in a strong swell.

The unmarked tins, worth $1 million, represent a third of the season's production by the Central Native Fishermen's Co-op at Shearwater near Bella Bella.

The salmon was being taken to Vancouver when a forklift truck broke loose inside the barge and rammed into the side, creating a gaping hole. The cargo shifted in the swell and the cases of salmon tumbled out.

Manitoba Jail Guards Still Out

WINNIPEG (CP) — Senior supervisory staff and RCMP officers were performing guard duties at Manitoba correctional institutions today as a strike by regular staff members continued.

Four of the 12 jails, youth centres and work camps run by the provincial government have been closed by the strike and their occupants transferred to other centres.

Premier Ed Schreyer was to review the situation today, but there was no indication of what action would be taken to get the 275 guards and 196 otherstaff members back to work.

Insp. Ron White of the RCMP said about 100 members of the force have been called in to assist supervisory personnel from the provincial government on a round-the-clock basis.

The staff, members of the Manitoba Government Employees' Association, went on strike late Sunday after refusing to accept a government offer on a new contract.

the weather

The current dry spell maintains a firm grip over B.C. with no release in sight. Thus the warm sunny weather will prevail over the next few days. The only exception will be along the exposed open coasts where patches of low clouds and fog persist.

Strikers Dispersed

MALAGA, Spain (Reuter) — Riot police fired rubber bullets and used truncheons Monday night to disperse hundreds of demonstrating hotel workers whose pay strike has crippled the booming tourist industry on the Costa del Sol. The clashes followed a meeting near Torremolinos of more than 4,000 workers, which ended in uproar.

HOLIDAY TIME in Paris left Concorde Square almost deserted Monday, giving a few lonely policemen little to watch but each other. Meanwhile, most of Paris was out in the countryside vacationing.

Airlines Slash Overseas Fares

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Major transatlantic airlines have agreed to offer a cut-rate $256 New York-London roundtrip fare beginning Sept. 15 to compete with a no-frills scheduled airline fare to be started by a British charter carrier next month.

The International Transport Association said Monday that six member airlines, including Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, will offer the $256 fare — a saving of up to $370 from normal economy prices — under two plans with various limitations. A one-way fare would be $146.

The British carrier, Laker Airways, plans to start a no-reservation "Skytrain" service without meals for $236 roundtrip or $135 one way.

Under one plan, the passenger cannot pick the day he wants to fly — only the week — and must purchase the tickets at least three weeks in advance. The airline would inform the passenger of the exact date and time of flight, 10 days or less before the week of departure.

The other plan is a standby arrangement — with no advance booking or guarantee of getting a seat. Seats would be assigned only after 4 a.m. on the day of the flight and could not be bought within three hours of the flight time in New York, or within two hours in London. There will be a limit of 2,900 low-cost seats available each week in either direction.

Tickets on Laker's Skytrain will be available six hours before each flight.

Unlike the Laker flights, which will go to London's distant Stansted Airport, the low fares on the IATA carriers will be available on their regular flights to closer-in Heathrow Airport. Also, meals will be included in the ticket price; they are not on the Skytrain.

The proposed faresm which would run until March 15, 1978, have to be approved by some IATA carriers who were not at the IATA meeting in Geneva late last week when agreement was reached, as well as by the governments of the airlines invilved, but no trouble with approval is expected.

Carter Stalls Word On Neutron Bomb

WASHINGTON (WP)— President Carter has postponed his expected decision on producing neutron artillery shells and Lance missile warheads partly because of sharp criticism of the new tatical nuclear weapons that has developed in West Germany, according to informed government sources.

A debate over the weapons, which would be used on West German territory, has been raging in that country and has taken on political significance for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's government.

Opposition to the neutron weapons also has been fanned throughout Europe by a concerted Communist party campaign in countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The president, a White House source said Monday, "wants to consult with our allies," before announcing his decision on the weapons.

Carter, a White House spokesman said last month, was to disclose his final production decision shortly after Aug. 15, the date a defence department energy research and develppment administration report on the weapons was due at the White House.

A Carter aide said the report had been received, "but the president needs time to review it."

A presidential decision, the aide said, is not expected now until September.

Neutron weapons are the first tactical nuclear shells and warheads that kill enemy troops through enhanced radiation rather than destroying their tanks and installations by heat and blast.

Because the neutron shells and warheads cut down on blast and heat, proponents argue they cause less collateral damage off the immediate battlefield.

Young Warns Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (WP) — UN Ambassador Andrew Young carried the Carter administration's human-rights compaign to this caribbean dictatorship Monday by warning the Haitian regime about Washington's concern over repression of "voices of dissent."

Although Younbg said repeatedly that the United States has no intention of telling Haiti what to do or interfering in its internal affairs, he made it clear that an improvement in the human rights situation here will directly affect the aid and cooperation Haiti receives from Washington.

"When people understand the way the winds are blowing and if they want to go with those winds, they trim their sails accordingly," Young said.

His public message to the government of President Jean-Claude Duvalier, delivered during a news conference, came as a surprise. Although it was no secret that Young intended to raise the human-rights issue during the Haitian stop on his 10-nation Caribbean tour, the expectation had been that he would do so in behind-the-scenes talks with Duvalier and Haitian officials.

Ford Wooed On Canal Pact

WASHINGTON — President Carter stepped up his efforts to win Republican support for the new Panama Canal treaties Monday as he met with former secretary of state Henry Kissinger and announced that he will send an emissary to Vail, Colo., to describe the terms of the treaties to former president Ford.

Kissinger, following a luncheon meeting with Carter at the White House, told reporters that based on what he knows now he is inclined to support ratification of the pacts.

Kissinger said he would put off a formal statement on the treaties until he is briefed on the details.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the president Monday telephoned Ford at his vacation home in Vail and discussed the treaties for about five minutes. Powell said that one of the chief American negotiators in the canal talks, Ambassador Sol Linowitz and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, will fly to Vail Tuesday to brief Ford on the details of the agreements.

The Kissinger briefing, also arranged by Carter, will be conducted by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, the other American negotiator, and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. David Jones.

The president also met, for the first time in about two weeks, with his beleaguered budget director, Bert Lance. The subject was government reorganization and, according to participants at the meeting, there was no mention of the comptroller of the currency's investigation of Lance's personal financial dealings.

BOLD SUITCASE ESCAPE OF HOSPITALIZED NAZI

BONN (WP)—Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler, who was apparently carried out of a military hospital in Rome, Italy, in a large suitcase early Monday in a daring escape, is now somewhere in West Germany, according to government spokesmen here.

Kappler, 70, was the former Gestapo Chief in Rome during the Second World War and he has been in prison there since 1948, after being convicted of directing the reprisal slaying of 335 Italian civilians in Rome on March 24, 1944.

Last year, Kappler became seriously ill with what was reported as terminal stomach cancer and has frequently asked to be allowed to return to Germany to die in his homeland. West German government officials in the past year have also made appeals to Italian authorities that Kappler's wish be granted.

Kappler was in fact scheduled to be released from Rome's Celio Military Hospital last November under provisions of an Italian law that allows prisoners to be set free if they have repented of their crimes and have served at least 28 years in prison. Kappler was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The decision to release the former officer, however, touched off a protest march by some 4,000 people in Rome, and the country's highest military court a month later overturned the original judgment by a lower military tribunal to release him.

Kappler, whose weight reportedly was down to about 105 pounds, was apparently smuggled out of the hospital in the early morning hours Monday in a large valise or trunk that was then stowed in the back of an automobile, according to Defence Ministry authorities in Rome. A hospital caretaker is said to have seen the tru k being put into the car.

Helping get Kappler out of the prison hospital was his wife, Annelise Kappler, who later telephoned Bonn government officials later Monday to say her husband is now in West Germany.

Decision Pending

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. justice department is close to making a decision on whether to seek indictments against former director of central intelligence Richard M. Helms and two officials of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The issue is whether Helms, ITT Chairman Harold S. Geneen or ITT Vice-President Edward J. Gerrity lied when they testified on the CIA and ITT role in trying to block the election in 1970 of Chilean President Salvador Allende.

Justice lawyers have been investigating Helms since early 1975 and the ITT officials since the end of that year.

Wash Hands and Smile

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy triumphantly announced on Monday that her ministry's new hospitality certificate course is "the first program of its kind in Canada." The implication was that no other province had ever thought up such a wonderful idea before.

Perhaps the truth of the matter is that other provincial governments did think of the idea once, studied it briefly, and then discarded it as absurd, patronizing and a terrible waste of the taxpayers' money.

The course, to be organized by Victoria Ald. Helen Beirnes at a salary which no one will disclose, appears to be some kind of follow-up to the government's Special Smile campaign. It seems to take an even more condescending attitude towards the tourist industry than the smile campaign, if that is possible.

According to Mrs. McCarthy topics to be covered in the course "include interpersonal relationships, the needs for service and its rewards, the importance of dress and personal cleanliness, and ways for remembering names and greeting customers. In addition, telephone techniques and the handling of complaints will bediscussed."

It sounds like an awful conglomerate of Grade Four health classes, Grade Eight guidance classes, and Grace's personal lessons on how to smile. No one has suggested how long each course will last, but judging from that curriculum, 15 minutes would seem about right.

Also, without downplaying Mrs. Beirnes' sincere interest in the tourism business, one must question just what qualifications she brings to her new post. The fact that she used to run a charm school? The fact that she was the first woman president of the local chamber of commerce. The fact that as an alderman she has been active in Victorian Days and other tourist-promoting activities? The fact that she herself has a pleasant smile? All good characteristics, but none of them seem to bear directly on the job to be done.

No one has suggested how much this program is going to cost the taxpayers, but it's a sure bet the "modest registration fee" to be charged the pupils won't cover all costs.

The taxpayers should protest their a money being used in such a wasteful way. Improving services to tourists is almost entirely a matter of improving workers' attitude, and it seems impossible that anyone's attitude is going to be improved by having some civil servant tell him to wash his hands and smile more.

Crackdown on Boaters

One leaves the gas fumes, noise and congestion of the city for a weekend picnic, swim and a quiet paddle on Elk Lake or Shawnigan Lake. And one encounters . . . gas fumes, noise and congestion compounded by the imminent possibility of propellor lacerations, concussion in collision with motorboats or death by drowning.

Two of the Victoria region's main recreational bodies of water have become crowded with boaters and water skiers, particularly on weekends. On Elk Lake the problem has become so bad that a committee of the capital regional board has proposed a ban on motorboats.

Such a drastic move is still a long way off, for it would require approval of both the provincial ministry of recreation and conservation and the federal ministry of transport — clearly a two or three years' job for the bureaucracy.

The regional board directors who recommended the ban also should rethink their proposal. It is clear that much of the problem on Elk Lake is due to lack of enforcement of existing regulations and ignorant boaters.

A few clearly worded signs in prominent places, buoyed markers setting off swimming areas and more active policing would cut down the annoyance factor considerably. The other half of the problem, boater stupidity, is a long term project but government has a responsibility to do something about it.

It is consistently amazing to nonboaters that there is no restriction whatever upon anyone who wants to be a weekend admiral. Licences are free for motor boaters. There are no tests, written or practical, to demonstrate one's knowledge and skill in handling a machine that is frequently bigger and more powerful than many automobiles. The MOT hands out free licences to boat owners and asks for no proof of ability or experience.

Contrast that with the restrictions on attaining the right to drive even a teeny moped, plus the widespread ignorance among boaters of even elementary rules of safety and common sense, and it is plain that there should be some tightening up.

The authorities do not allow automobiles to speed past playgrounds; neither should motorboats be allowed to get away with conduct dangerous to swimmers and people in canoes and rowboats. It should not be considered unreasonable to impose a time limit on water skiing on Elk and Shawnigan lakes, say a prohibition before the hour of 11 a.m. and after six p.m., and to ban power boats from coming within a quarter mile of swimming areas.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Making the FOI Law Work

WASHINGTON — At a congressional hearing recently, Sen. Edward Kennedy directed a sharp question at the country's top intelligence man. How, he asked, had a private citizen managed to pry out of the CIA thousands of sensational documents which not even the U.S. Congress had been able to get their hands on?

The question, dealing with the CIA's funding of mind-control experiments in the U.S. and Canada 20 years ago, was largely rhetorical. Kennedy and his colleagues knew the answer, and it irritated them.

Sitting in the back of the chamber, expressionless was the private citizen. John Marks, 34. His weapon had been the U.S. Freedom of Information Act, a piece of legislation that has yielded an unexpected bonanza during the few years it has been in force.

Mark's coup consisted of some 8,000 pieces of paper which had been secreted and forgotten in dusty CIA archives for two decades. While bloodying the recent history of the intelligence community, the release of the documents allowed the U.S. government at the same time to purge itself of an ugly secret.

The man responsible for all this is a lanky, bearded, former U.S. foreign service officer who dropped out of the system during the Nixon years and dedicated himself to unlocking the doors that hid the buceaucratic skeletons.

Murky Dealings

Since 1966, when the act was passed by a Congress which felt the public's "right to know" should be translated into a law with teeth, U.S. citizens have been probing their government with great energy.

Perhaps as many as a million freedom-of-information requests have been directed at the bureaucracy. Under the act, an individual, a newspaper, a special-interest group or a corporation can knock on a government agency's door and ask questions, embarrassing or otherwise.

During the Nixon years, Congress saw that the mechanics of the act were being threatened by a great deal of foot-dragging and it added more muscle to the law, including a mandatory 40 days to reply to a request.

And if a government agency refused to reply, it needed a good reason. Disciplinary measures were set up against civil servants who arbitrarily withheld information, outside of a number of exempt areas such as national security and trade secrets.

Last year, an estimated 150,000 requests were filed — mostly with the departments of defence, justice and the treasury — and about 15 per cent were denied in whole or in part. Many of these denials were appealed and eventually overturned.

It's been a costly exercise in democracy. Last year, for example, the defence department spent $4.7 million on meeting the various requests, and collected a mere $200,000 in search fees and copying costs.

And the FBI, months behind schedule in processing its requests, had to bring in 400 agents from the field this summer to wade through the backlog.

Though many of the documents released in disputed cases are censored, and agencies are often obstructive, U.S. civil libertarians are generally pleased with the effectiveness of the law.

Marks credits his success in the CIA pursuit to persistence, the help of a battery of lawyers, and his own intimate knowledge of how civil servants think, knowledge he picked up during his five years with th U.S. state department.

"I learned that low-level bureaucrats don't start cover-ups on their own, that's the work of the higher-echelon people.

"I should also admit that I apparently had the help of a whistle-blower in the CIA who felt strongly that this stuff should come out. I don't know who it is, but I'd like to meet him or her some day."

EDWARD KENNEDY
. . . interested in FOI

Marks abandoned the state department shortly after the 1970 U.S. invasion of Cambodia, an event that radicalized him. In 1972, after Richard Nixon was re-elected, he collaborated with CIA "defector" Victor Marchetti in the writing of the controversial book, the CIA and the Cult of Intelligence.

Marks says he uses the act as a "long-term investment"—filing requests one after the other and waiting for them to bear fruit over a period of months and even years. "I nickel-and-dime them to death," is how he describes it.

He turned his sights on the CIA and its mind-control research after reading the Rockefeller report on intelligence in 1975. "It was right there: the radiation treatment, the electric shock treatment, the psychiatry. I read it and was fascinated, so I filed a freedom-of-information request for more and waited."

Included in the report was the account of Fred Olsen, the subject of LSD experiments in the 1950s who later committed suicide. "The press ignored the rest of the report, because they were so interested in the one man who had killed himself. They saw a tree, and ignored the forest."

By no means did the CIA make it easy for him, however. At first, they simply ignored his request. Then his legal people got to work. "The correspondence was this thick," Marks says, holding his hands six inches apart.

Then they tried another tack. They told him that searching for the first batch of papers would cost him. Marks about $5,000 in a "search fee." The next batch, dealing with how the CIA planned to use their research findings, would cost him $30,000.

He ignored the billings and plodded on. The forces he had set in motion, Marks knew, would inexorably yield the results he wanted. "Look, the system works," he says, spreading out his hands. "The government is now faced with the necessity of following its own laws, and it acts differently from the government we all learned to hate in the 1960s . . ."

Skeptical

"No," he warns, "you better not put that down . . ."

Finally, last spring, the CIA realized that Marks had them in a box and they released to him the first trickle of documents. Then, he went to the news media. The New York Times pursued the agency, requesting the papers that Marks had been pursuing under the information act.

Their findings hit the headlines two weeks ago, and the U.S. Congress realized the enormity of what had been hidden from them for years.

Marks also admits hoping it won't sound too callous that he is looking for the "victims" of the research. He's currently working on a book on the CIA research. "This might sound a little cold-blooded, but I'd like to find somebody who's been, you know, a vegetable since 1956. I need the victims."

He rejects the commonly held notion that the more the public knows about the activities of its intelligence agencies, the less effective they become.

"Look, there's a great danger and a great threat in this area of research, and I see this scandals as keeping the government out of this area for quiet a few years.

"Besides, there's a necessity for this country to know its own history. And the abuses of the CIA have been to a large extent eliminated. They are conscious of public relations, which is progress."

Auto Industry

Three items appeared in the press on consecutive days last week; one confirmed that urban air pollution — primarily from autos — reached higher levels than ever previously recorded; the second reported that the U.S. Senate had approved a relaxation in the auto emission standards for 1977 to overcome "the threat of an auto industry shutdown." This only goes to prove that those of us who thought the oil crisis of five years ago might be a blessing in disguise by reducing car travel failed to recognize that North Americans are so irrevocably wedded to the automobile they don't care if it kills them. Present indications are that it probably will.

It is ironic that neither the air pollution crisis of the sixties nor the "oil crisis" of 1973 have resulted in any significant reduction in the frivolous waste of fuel or in the rate of atmospheric pollution. We continue this wild rate of consumption of our almost depleted oil resources, throw more thousands of tons of hydrocarbons into the air, denude more thousands of acres of their fragile forest cover and then comfort ourselves with the belief that the present chaotic cycles of flood and drought are just coincidence — a natural phenomenon.

The third news item reported the continued collapse of the Canadian dollar — even when related to the U.S. dollar which is itself in dire straits. The reason for this economic collapse is our $9 billion deficit created primarily by loss of oil and gas sales revenue and by a gigantic escalation of oil imports which in real terms we don't need and certainly cannot afford.

Lengthy technical articles on energy conservation appear daily in the press; suggested alternative forms of energy abound; we talk of nuclear power, of solar power, of wind power; we even consider turning off the downtown street lights: this is like putting a band-aid on a broken leg. The only solution to the energy problem has been obvious for years and that is immediate curtailment of the size and frivolous use of the automobile. This would also resolve the air pollution problem by reducing gasoline consumption by 50 per cent.

So what sort of calamity is the "threat of an auto industry shutdown"? The industry's been shut down before and there were no fatalities. Perhaps a world-wide shutdown would be a good idea; followed by a return to production restricted to 50 miles per gallon non-polluting autos (which have been within our technical competence for decades). At the same time we could consider a moratorium on tree cutting and put the work force to the task of replanting a few of the millions of denuded acres.

Such a move would cause economic and social chaos you say? Depends on your sense of priorities. The way we're heading right now results in thousands dying from respiratory disease every year and getting worse. We cannot continue to sell off the North American economy for Arab oil indefinitely — we will run out of dollars or they may turn off the tap. When that happens we really will be faced with social and economic chaos. The real question is what must we do to prevent further environmental destruction and to preserve our last remaining reserves of fossil fuels.

The answer has been obvious for at least ten years; why are we so determined to ignore it? Are the marriage vows to Henry Ford's wheels so sacred that they will indeed endure "till death us do part"? —Ian M. Cass, 3844 Merriman Drive.

Good News

The minister of national revenue, Monique Begin, has announced an amendment to the gasoline excise tax regulations concerning the entitlement of handicapped people to a refund. Whereas previously the excise tax on gasoline for handicapped people was only refundable during use of a car for going to and from work, now a refund is available for any handicapped person who is unable to use public transportation, whether for work or pleasure. The regional and district excise officers can give any further information. Any refunds in taxes or reductions in taxes are good news.

I hope that this will make some of your readers happy today.—Senator A. E. H. (Nancy) Bell, Ottawa.

Sensitive Issue

In his letter Public Funding (August 2) Ian Kelsey of Vancouver misuses my opinion as to the purpose of Catholic education to make it appear that I am somehow in favour of the abolition of separation of church and state. On the contrary, far be it from me not to respect such a vital principle! However, may I point out that it is hardly supporting some sort of union of church (what church?) and state to advocate as I do that citizens be permitted to choose whatever school system, be it state ("public") or independent (Catholic, Jewish, Anglican-affiliated private, even atheist, or whatever) they want their school tax dollars to pay for. As has often been stressed before, only B.C. and Manitoba in all of Canada still maintain unjust laws requiring everyone to finance a single monolithic system run by the state. Such laws infringe on a person's human rights, financially burdening citizens who prefer independent to state-run schools. The interest of the state in education is secondary, not primary.

I do realize, nevertheless, that the issue of public monies going to Catholic schools is a sensitive one in B.C. where distorted, prejudiced, bigoted, and ignorant opinions still apparently abound as to the intentions and indeed the very nature of the Catholic faith, some even going so far as to cast doubts on the Christian character of Catholicism, despite the facts that B.C.'s first schools were Catholic, that the first converts to Christ among our aboriginal peoples were Catholic, likewise the first church was Franciscan, that B.C.'s only privately-funded university was the late lamented Notre Dame of Nelson, and that outstanding Roman Catholic voyageurs, coureurs de bois, Oblate missionaries, and others such as the celebrated Scot Simon Fraser were pre-eminent among the very first to open B.C. territory to European civilization and settlement, and to the benign influence of Christ. — Robin Terry, 524 Dallas Road.

Seaway Story

Colin Vaughan forgot one thing in his August 6 Weekend magazine article on the St. Lawrence Seaway, the other side of the story.

Mr. Vaughan mentions repeatedly the $842 million debt of the seaway but forgets the same seaway cost less than $400 million to build, the rest being accumulated interest on capital construction costs.

Ottawa anticipated in 1959 that seaway revenues would cover most operating costs (they did until two years ago) but was naive in assuming these same revenues would also retire the paper debt.

Mr. Vaughan pays no attention to the fact that any toll increases Canadian commerce could withstand could never retire this debt, even the doubling of tolls now proposed by Ottawa.

The cost of moving eastern Canadian iron ore west to U.S. Great Lakes ports by the seaway is only marginally below the cost of moving the same ore down the east coast of the U.S. and thence inland by rail to American steel mills.

Similarly, U.S. grain carried for export via the seaway could easily be rerouted down the Mississippi River system.

The competitive position of Canadian seaway carriers is further dependent on carrying grain east and backhauling with ore for the trip west. Lose one of these commodities and you may lose the other. Lose both and there's not much left to carry.

The competitiveness of the seaway is vital to all Canadians, not just the shipping companies or primary industries which receive their feedstocks by water.

Development and sustenance of much of Canada's basic industry depends on low-cost transportation through the seaway. Employment in the grain, iron ore, shipping and related industries is too vital to be tampered with.

Contributions to Canada's balance of payments from the movement of Canadian ore to U.S. mills by the seaway amounts to more than half a billion dollars annually.

Mr. Vaughan's contention that Canadian taxpayers have been subsidizing Americans is a little hard to fathom since ships of Canadian registry carry more than 90 per cent of the bulk cargoes moving between Canadian and U.S. inland ports.

Mr. Vaughan also forgets that Canadian ships have toll-free passage through the Soo lock at Sault Ste. Marie.

He forgets that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' icebreaking and dredging efforts in the Great Lakes benefit Canadians every day, free of charge.

But surely the point is that if Ottawa insists on applying an economic theory of user pay to our inland waters, shouldn't the same formula be applied to other federal transportation facilities?

Would government get out-of-town commuters to ride public transit if they had to pay $20 a day to get to and from work by non-subsidized train or express bus?

You cannot have it both ways, not even government. — Jack MacDonald, Chairman, Great Lakes Waterways Development Association, Winnipeg.

Nemesis Replies

Well, Mr. Steeves, district manager of Air Canada, here is your old nemesis, probably one of Victoria's (and therefore your) most travelling air customers, weighing in on the side of the Times.

Your meals! Even to the person indoctrinated into TV dinners, they must taste like, not "fried," but "soggy cardboard." They make CP Air and American Airlines seem like gourmet chefs. Only Western Airlines comes close in the indigestion league — and Western gives you extra leg room to work off your gas pains.

Your fares! Who refuses to honor the Pacific Western Victoria to Vancouver (substantially) reduced round-trip fare? Who charges a Victoria-based passenger $25 when he is flying to Vancouver without baggage and without the need of ground assistance while charging another Victoria-based passenger $2 when he is flying to Vancouver and then changing planes for elsewhere on the continent, switching baggage from plane to plane, etc. etc.? Who hangs on stubbornly to its Victoria landing rights but will not give a late-night service while at the same time frustrating a Pacific Western Airlines bus service? Air Canada, that's who, on all counts.

Your complaints about no-shows! Mr. Steeves, I will guarantee to cancel any unused booking the day that you guarantee me that your computer is no longer programmed to overbook and that you give up your ridiculous seat apportionment system that has nearly half empty planes indicated as full and that satisfies neither the advance booker nor the day-to-day traveller.

And what about your exhausted Montreal-based stewardesses who look upon us homeward-bound Victorians as the tag-end of a harassing, anglo day? Is that good scheduling? I will take the cheery Pacific Western stews any time.

Mr. Steeves, lets really keep the record straight. The only Air Canada service which deserves credit in and from the Victoria area are the forever cheeful, helpful and gracious staff at the airport. Who continue that way even though some great mind in Place Ville Marie (Montreal, again) has planes concentrated in unnecessary bunches that would test a staff and service area twice as large. And you didn't even think to mention them. — Michael Butler, 736 Broughton.

Propaganda Unwanted In Cause of Unity

By BORDEN SPEARS
Toronto Star

Never mind the prime ministerial intimation that if the media will not discipline themselves, "discipline of course has to be imposed upon them." It was, as a prime ministerial aide explained, just rhetoric—from the same school of rhetoric that gave us participatory democracy, fuddle duddle, the right to live without working, the end of the free market system, and the dawn of an era in which "there's going to be not less authority in our lives but perhaps more." None of this rhetoric, after all, has really been translated into action, except perhaps for some increase of parlimentary fuddle duddling.

So disregard the rhetoric, which is to be looked for in politicians. Former prime minister Harold Wilson made a veiled threat to put an official brake on the British press. He failed to follow through, and a royal commission has just rejected the idea categorically. Even Abraham Lincoln, that apostle of human liberty, once had two newspaper proprietors arrested. His country nevertheless went on to develop the freest press in the world.

No. What must concern us is the announcement that propaganda has now been adopted as an instrument of Canadian governmental policy and that two federal agencies have been established to wield it. This comes about because a government—which, according to the latest Gallup Poll, is supported by 51 per cent of Canadian voters—thinks its message is not reaching the people.

The objective is entirely proper; it is to protect the fragile unity of Canada. And of course it isn't nice to describe the measures taken as propaganda. They are a defensive information service designed to meet what Ottawa regards as propaganda emanating from Quebec; in effect, a counter-propaganda truth squad. The prospect is nevertheless unsettling.

Propaganda is the spreading of ideas, information or rumor for the purpose of helping or injuring an institution, a cause or a person. It has earned a bad name. Propaganda is what the nasty people on the other side of the argument do; what the Good Guys (ourselves) provide is information. This is patent nonsense; both exercises distort the truth.

The argument for a propaganda service rests on two assumptions, the first being that the normal news media have failed to preserve national unity. This is clearly true; it is equally true, and equally unhelpful, to say that their failure is matched by the failure of everyone else in the country.

The fact is that the press of Canada has done as much to define a national purpose and foster unity as any institution, including governments. The CBC was singled out as the government's first target for blame because its mandate requires it to promote unity. It has probably done the best service of all, notwithstanding the intemperate criticisms levelled by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

The second basis for an official "information" service is that governments will tell the people all they need to know to form responsible decisions. The suggestion may be greeted quizzically by searchers for the facts about Ontario Hydro contracts, the dealings of Polysar and Atomic Energy of Canada, the plans for nuclear waste disposal and plutonium production.

It was the CBC, and not any of the governments involved, which reported this month that at least two provinces have signed agreements with Quebec on equal language rights, more or less as proposed by Premier Rene Levesque. It might have been poor propaganda to disclose that as long ago as 1969, provinces were negotiating treaties like sovereign states. It might, however, have done something for national unity.

Even the shape and purpose of the various national unity efforts remain somewhat cloudy. On Feb. 4, the Prime Minister announced a new unit in the federal-provincial relations office to co-ordinate federal strategies. Later the press learned, and the Prime Minister confirmed, that another group of 10 officials would form an information centre to counter the "subversive propaganda" from Quebec. Two days after that, another aide said the statement made in Parliament was inoperable.

Meanwhile, the task force on national unity headed by John Robarts and Jean-Luc Pepin was set up. Its mandate was at least more clearly defined: "To support, encourage and publicize the efforts of the general public—and particularly of non-governmental organizations—to enhance national unity."

One of its chief officials will be a Managing Co-ordinator of Non-government Organizations. His job description says that he will "help these various organizations in determining and defining their purpose and objectives and who they are. This person will feed them information, suggest things they can do and help them prepare publications and presentations . . . This person will have a marketing sense of how to communicate national unity so that public opinion can be influenced in a fair and objective manner . . ."

Is everyone quite comfortable about that? Or does it smack, just faintly, of thought control?

'Dene Nation' Would be a Disaster

By WALLACE MILLS

(Mills is chairman of the history department at St. Mary's University in Halifax. He wrote this article for The Globe and Mail)

Judge Berger, right, talks with Chief Jim Antoine of Fort Simpson

One byproduct of the Berger commission has been a series of proposals put forward by the Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories which might be called the "Dene proposals." Except for some rather hasty support by pipeline opponents, little serious discussion has been forthcoming. Yet, if implemented — although the federal government has said it is strongly opposed — the proposals would throw us back into the dismal age of racism. The consequences, both for Canada and the native peoples, would be disastrous.

Last fall the Indian Brotherhood declared itself to be the "Dene nation" and demanded recognition from the federal government as a separate nation within Canada. Recognition was to include a delineation of national boundaries and the creation of an autonomous government.

* * *

In response to objections from non-status Indians and Metis, an Indian Brotherhood conference in June responded by trying to broaden the definition of "Dene" so that non-status Indians and Metis could declare themselves "Dene." Then, on July 14, the Brotherhood reversed itself and declared that three "separate nations" (the Dene, the Metis and the Inuit) should be recognized.

The idea of "separate nations" is not a new one. In fact, this has been the official policy of South Africa for about 20 years; it's called "apartheid" or, more euphemistically nowadays, "separate development." The "separate nations" are called Bantustans.

The first Bantustan, the Transkei, which is now designated as the homeland of the Xhosa nation, has had a separate constitution and government since 1963. Thus, in theory at least, it has had everything the Dene are asking for. Last October the South African government went a step further and declared that the Transkei was now a totally independent state.

In South Africa, the concept is used as a means of denying blacks their fair share of the wealth and resources of the country and their claim to South African citizenship. The program has been bitterly resisted by blacks. Yet we are to believe that this stunningly successful technique of oppression can be the salvation of native people in this country.

* * *

Lest some people think my analogy is far-fetched, let's consider one of the immediate effects of implementing the proposals. "Race" would be reintroduced into our definition of citizenship. The creation of a separate Dene "nation" assumes that only Dene can belong and exercise the rights of citizenship. But how are Dene to be defined? The easiest and only logical way to do this is by descent; that is, by a biological determination. I don't care how you slice that cake — it still equals "race." And the problems begin to multiply.

What would be the status of children who have only one Dene parent? Presumably, with a "Metis nation" next door, they would have to look there for their homeland. Would 100 per cent purity of Dene descent be required? If not, where would the cut-off point be? Obviously, people of dubious Dene parentage would have to be checked and classified as Dene or non-Dene. What would be the status and, therefore, rights of the non-Dene within the boundaries of the "Dene nation"? What about migrants into Deneland?

Unless the entire purpose of a separate state is to be nullified, either immigration has to be restricted (presumably to those who are useful to or necessary for the "Dene nation") or they must be denied citizenship, especially political rights. (In South Africa both principles are used.) If non-Dene Canadians who move to Deneland are denied citizenship, then justice requires that Canada should then alter its citizenship laws to exclude Dene — a racial distinction.

* * *

In addition to these moral and ethical objections, it is virtually impossible to imagine a scenario in which the existence of the proposed mini-states would have anything but negative effects for the native people. Some people seem to support the concept because they want to stop development: it must be stopped because it would destroy hunting and trapping — the "traditional way of life."

At present, it can hardly be called traditional, in the sense that it predated the arrival of the white man. Its primary purpose has been shifting from subsistence (self-use) to income and cash, with no sign of stopping. Nor is it traditional in its technology. Few hunter-trappers rely upon snowshoes, dog teams or paddled canoes. Most use guns and snowmobiles and propel their canoes with outboard motors.

* * *

At best, hunting and trapping provide only a marginal, highly vulnerable standard of living. It is a possible way of life for only a tiny minority of the native people. With advancing technology and the need for higher incomes, trap lines are getting longer and each hunter-trapper requires more land. Hence, the number in the occupation is certain to decline.

However, not everyone favors the "no development" extreme; others, including myself, advocate limited or controlled development. Would a series of mini-states be able to control development and moderate its effects? The record of our provincial governments produces little grounds for optimism. The native peoples must be given not only a voice, but an active role in the determination of the future of the north. The Dene proposals, however, are not an appropriate vehicle.

The final scenario is that of the north as the "new Eldorado." This is a mirage. There are great resources in the north, but the enormous costs of extraction and delivery will prohibit vast accretions of wealth such as have been enjoyed by oil-rich nations. Thus, a separate Dene nation is unlikely to become a second Kuwait.

Of course, the primary purpose of the Dene proposals may well be a bargaining ploy in the negotiations for the settlement of land claims. However, I fear that the Dene are playing with fire. By calling for exclusive rights in a separate territory, they tend to forfeit their claim to an equitable share of the general wealth.

Moreover, the entire approach is conservative. Nostalgic longing for the past rarely provides a solution. It is for that reason that the American Indian Movement and similar organizations are much more helpful. While they are consciously returning to their past as a means of gaining inspiration and regaining pride, they are trying to confront the present and the future. They are not trying to return to a "traditional way of life." Essentially, they are trying to recycle and readapt, not recreate, the past.

Making the Best of the Pill

By KATHARINE WHITEHORN
London Observer

The claim that the universal holiday bug stopper, Entero Vioform, is not the good news we all thought it was has filled me with gloom. Not that I ate much of the stuff, but any time one tries to discredit a pill you can be sure as day follows night that we'll get some doctor denouncing the pill-fed millions and saying how rotten it is that we're a drug-dependent society.

I must say I resent all this. It seems to be getting at me personally. I take a lot of pills and I am not ashamed of it — though no more, I suspect, than quite a lot of people who've been made to be ashamed of it by doctors. I don't, I admit, take tranquillizers — but that's only because I have no wish whatever to be tranquil.

* * *

I take secret-of-eternal-youth pills to stop my hair falling out and my eyes swimming with tears; the occasional courses of pills to stop me eating everything I see; aspirins for the odd headache; and the rare non-barbituarate sleeping pill for the nights when the mind won't stop buzzing. And why shouldn't I?

What really gets me about the anti-pill brigade is that they seem to think the thing is wrong simply because there are such large numbers doing it. They get shrill about every second housewife in Dusseldorf taking tranquillizers or note with disgust that the citizens of Hull consume their own weight in aspirin every year; but they don't explain why that makes it all more wicked for me. I don't see it.

If I have a headache, am I supposed to go on having the headache just because too many other people have had headaches that week already? Is it all right if 5,000 women in a town are guzzling the stuff, bad if 6,000 are — and then do I suddenly become bad just because I'm number 5,001? In the days of bat's blood and herbal remedies, there was maybe only one lady per village who needed the stuff; now there are more of us, so thank goodness they've found a way of mass-producing the remedy.

I remember the sinking feeling I got when my eldest child got to the point where he could swallow a pill without turning purple and spluttering all over the room. It should have been a great day but it wasn't, for up till then, whenever I had to cope with some infant ailment like flu or measles or an arithmetic test, I had seen myself as an angel of light pouring something soothing from a spoon. Now, suddenly, I was a pill-pushing mother, stuffing my young with addictive wickedness.

* * *

And in any case, what's the alternative? Unless you seriously believe that suffering ennobles (a theory I'm only prepared to put to the test with other people's suffering) are you really going to say "I'll lay off the aspirin because I think too many people guzzle the stuff at the present time?" It doesn't seem very likely.

What is likely is that someone who doesn't themselves need pills will come round and make you feel rotten about it; just as the Natural Childbirth movement has made hundreds of women feel guilty about having pains in labour. It's fine to say "I am so healthy and well-adjusted that I don't need drugs"; but it rapidly becomes "You're a weakling to have these drugs whether you need them or not" and that's quite another matter.

If I lived in a society where I could assume the shape of a beached seal without losing my prestige or the respect of my family, I wouldn't need to try to stay slim or take appetite reducers.

* * *

If I was a Victorian matron who could retire for hours to a bed in lavender-scented darkness, I might well not reach so greedily for the aspirin. And if I belonged in a world where they would venerate my grey hairs, say "Yes, Mama" whenever I spoke and think that my wisdom grew with my waistline, I might well give up any attempt to arrest the downward slide.

But I don't. I live — we all live — at a pace, with an insecurity, which makes us need all the help we can get. And if some sunny earth mother whose extreme youth and creamy skin enables her to despise all artificial aides comes round and tries to make me feel sleazy and corrupt for gulping the odd tablet, why then I'll — well I'll make her wish I was on tranquillizers, that's all. I'll certainly do my best to make sure that she needs them after meeting me.

WORKMAN looks up at the rudder of Canada's newest self-loading Great Lakes bulk carrier, known only as Hull 212 until its official christening in October. The vessel has been specially equipped to transport Western Canadian coal which is expected to be an increasingly important cargo on the Great Lakes in coming years. With an over-all length of 730 feet, Hull 212 is the maximum sized vessel that can be accommodated by the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Canadian Bond Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — The finance departent released details Monday of a new $1-billion issue of Government of Canada bonds to be dated Sept. 1.

Proceeds from the new bonds issue will be used to redeem $500 million in government bonds maturing on the same day, the department said in a release.

The department said the issue will consist of four non-callable maturities as follows:

— 7.5-per-cent bonds due June 1, 1980, at a price of 99.70 per cent to yield about 7.62 per cent to maturity;

— Eight-per-cent bonds due July 1, 1982, at a price of 99.50 per cent to yield about 8.12 per cent to maturity;

— 8.25-per-cent bonds due July 1, 1987, at a price of 98.75 per cent to yield about 8.44 per cent to maturity;

— 9.25-per-cent bonds due May 15, 1997 at a price of 100.75 per cent to yield about 9.16 per cent to maturity.

The Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire a minimum of $450 million of the new bonds, replacing its holding of $227 million of Government of Canada bonds maturing Sept. 1, the department said.

Babcock Accepts Takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — Babcock and Wilcox Co.'s five-month battle to avoid takeover ended today with consent to the merger plans of a New Orleans firm.

The New York-based manufacturer of coal and nuclear-fired generating plants recommended its stockholders accept the offer of J. Ray McDermott and Co. to buy 4.3 million shares of Babcock stock.

McDermott, a builder of offshore oil rigs, offered $55 a share, or $236.5 million, beating the best offer of United Technologies Corp., a Hartford-based conglomerate.

If McDermott's attempt is successful, it will own a total of 6.5 million shares, or 45 per cent of Babcock's outstanding stock purchases were made, stock purchases weres made, a merger of the two companies will be proposed as soon as possible.

BONDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were generally unchanged in quiet trading on the Canadian bond market Monday. The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid-, long-term and corporate issues remained the same. Provincial issues were down one-eighth of a point. Day-to-day money was available at 7¼ per cent.

Lending Rate Rises

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Dominion Bank has raised its United States base-lending rate to 7¼ per cent from seven per cent, effective immediately.

Last week, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce announced a similar move.

A spokesman for Toronto Dominion said the change reflects recent trends in interest rates.

The base rate is the minimum level at which banks are prepared to loan U.S. funds in Canada.

Jesus Freedom Fighter Today?

CALGARY (CP) — Jesus would be known as a freedom fighter if he were alive today and would be aiding the African liberation movements, Rev. Burgess Carr, general secretary of the All Africa Council of Churches, said Monday.

Rev. Carr told a news conference that if Jesus were alive he would be supporting guerrilla movements in southern Africa.

"When he was here, he was known as a freedom fighter," Rev. Carr said.

"Jesus was killed for a political reason. The gospel makes this very clear."

Rev. Carr said the Anglican church must provide funds to support African guerrilla movements.

Most Rev. E. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, told a news conference during the church's 28th general synod he would not oppose Rev. Carr's stand.

Rev. Carr said the Anglican church has provided funds to liberation movements in a number of African countries, adding the World Council of Churches has provided more than $200,000 to those groups.

He said the world council has provided about $125,000 to the South-West Africa Peoples' Organization and lesser amounts to other groups.

He added the money is primarily for the purchase of bandages and school books and that the funds were not used to buy guns as some critics have claimed.

Archbishop Scott, titular head of the 1.5-million member church in Canada, said he would support Carr's position.

In another discussion Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer, chairman of the Law Reform Commission of Canada, said that a series of hearings similar to the Berger commission could be held across Canada within three to four years to discuss the definition of life.

The Anglican church is to discuss a report on death and dying on Wednesday. That report, which suggests that severely-deformed infants be allowed to die, has received criticism from across the country.

EDMONTON HIT BY BLACKOUT

EDMONTON (CP) — Downtown Edmonton was blacked out for about two hours Monday night as a rain storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning, hit the city.

The failure began about 10:40 p.m., and most areas had power restored by about 12:35 a.m.

Don Murphy, an Edmonton power department official, said the failure extended through an area about 73 blocks by 20 blocks, with lights restored gradually.

Murphy said the failure was probably caused by lightning.

A spokesman for the Edmonton fire department said a blaze — which started when lightning struck a control room at the downtown Rossdale power plant — may have been the cause.

There were no other fires, but he said the lack of power "caused all kinds of hell."

The spokesman said there were 10 calls in less than an

Enough Ammunition 'To Start a War'

BURNABY (CP) — Three men appeared in provincial court Monday in connection with an RCMP seizure of a sub-machine gun, three assault rifles, three shotguns, four handguns, enough ammunition "to start a war" and a pound of heroin in a series of raids during the weekend.

Sgt. George Ripley said none of the three suspects, who he said were "three top men of a major drug distributor", were armed when arrested at an unoccupied apartment in this community, just east of Vancouver.

"But I think if we had gone in there at the wrong time we would have had some dead policeman," he said.

Ripley said most of the arms, the bulk heroin, capsules and paraphenalia used in a capping operation were found at the apartment, while more arms were turned up during a later raid on the home of one of the suspects.

Calvin Weyman Wilson, 37, of White Rock; Gary William Main, 29, of Laidlaw, and Frank Edward O'Donnell, 33, of Surrey, were remanded in custody to today to be charged in connection with the seizure.

NEW GROWERS CAN'T SELL TO WINERIES

KELOWNA (CP) — A new licensing system adopted by the British Columbia Grape Marketing Board will prevent new growers from selling grapes to wineries, the president of the B.C. Grape Growers Association said Monday.

Eden Raikes said the new system, which allows only established growers with class A licences to sell to wineries, will reduce the chance of surpluses, estimated this year to be about 2,000 tons of a 12,500-ton crop.

"Anyone who wants to plant new grapes won't get licence to sell to wineries until the surplus goes down," said Raikes. "It stops nobody from planting grapes and selling them as table grapes or to individual growers."

The new system was agreed on at a meeting between growers and winery operators last Friday.

Mailbox Bombed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A North Vancouver man said Monday he narrowly escaped injury when six youths bombed a mailbox about 100 yards from his home.

"A piece of the mailbox came right through the front door and knocked plaster off the wall," said Riccardo Sammarco. "At first it sounded like the ceiling was coming down. We are lucky to be alive."

Leak Cause Traced

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The release of dangerous gasses that killed one man at the Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd. mill Friday was caused by circumstances unlikely to occur again, a workers compsnesation board official said Monday.

Chris Smith said the accident was caused by high levels of hydrogen sulphide and "no one could have anticipated it happening."

Walter Langdon-Davies, 36, of Prince George was killed following the gas leak and another man remains in hospital. Thirteen others were treated for gas inhalation and released.

LRB Ruling Sought

VANCOUVER (C) — The Canadian Paperworkers Union Monday launched an action asking the British Columbia Labor Relations Board to rule that the Forest companies are not bargaining in good faith when they refuse to discuss pensions paid to employees who have retired.

A ruling in favor of the union would mean that employers could be required through negotiations to pay higher benefits to retired employees.

$881,000 THEFT SUSPECT

VERNON (CP) — John Wayne Geick, 28, was denied bail when he appeared in provincial court Monday, charged with theft over $200 in connection with an $881,000 robber from a local bank in 1972.

Geick entered no plea on the charge and was remanded in custody until Aug. 22. The accused was an employee at the Bank of Nova Scotia when the money was discovered missing Feb. 14, 1972.

A WAGON BUILT TO CARRY CARGO MORE PRECIOUS THAN GROCERIES.

Any station wagon can take a load of stuff from one place to another.
The Volvo wagon, on the other hand, was designed to take a load off your mind as a parent.
Volvo realizes, for example, that it's impossible to keep both eyes on the road if you have to keep one eye on the back seat.
So to keep the kids in place, we provide you with things like child-proof door locks on all the rear doors. Including the back one.
And to virtually guarantee that you can focus your attention on the road at all times, we give you defrosters for the front side windows, and the rear window comes with its own wiper, washer, and defroster.
On the road, the first thing you'll notice is how quickly our overhead cam engine can put trouble behind you. Should trouble appear ahead, you'll appreciate the way our rack and pinion steering can help you steer clear of it. And our four-wheel power disc brakes can help get you out of it.
In spite of all these precautions, we realize that accidents do happen. So we've planned for the unplanned.
Where many wagons may feature a front end designed to impress the neighbors, the Volvo wagon features a front end designed to help absorb the impact of a collision.
Our passenger compartment is surrounded by a protective steel cage.
Our side doors have steel tubes running through their insides for added protection, instead of imitation wood running down their outsides for frivolous decoration.
There's also a padded dashboard. A collapsible steering wheel. A gas tank mounted in a protected place.
Look at it this way.
There's finally a wagon that shows as much concern for your children as you do.

Nightmare World Held Son of Sam

NEW YORK — The man who called himself the Son of Sam and the Duke of Death "lives in a nightmare world where he sees blood-sucking vampires and Frankenstein monsters," say police who have studied handwritten letters from the killer and from David Berkowitz to his friends.

Berkowitz, 24, is to be arraigned today in the July 31 slaying of Stacy Moskowitz and the wounding of her date, Robert Violante, both 20, the last victims in the year-long spree of the man police call the .44-calibre killer.

Berkowitz, being tested to see if he is mentally capable of standing trial, was charged in a grand-jury indictment [illegible] murder, attempted murder, assault and illegal possession of the .44-calibre Charter Arms revolver that ballistics experts say killed six persons and wounded seven others.

TORONTO — Most Rev. Donald F. Coggan, Archbishop of Canterbury and head of 65 million Anglicans around the world, is in Canada for a two-week vacation.

The archbishop, who is staying in the Muskoka district of Ontario, arrived on the weekend accompanied by his wife Jean.

The archbishop's press secretary at Lambeth Palace, London, said in a telephone interview on Monday that the visit is a private one, but the archbishop will deliver several major addresses at the end of the month.

Blood Rises Above Handicaps

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The object of theatre-going is to have one's sense engaged in an emotional experience of some kind. That is why among theatre professionals and audiences alike, to be boring is the inexcusable sin.

Speaking plainly concerning the production of Federico Garcia Lorca's Blood Wedding at UVic's Phoenix Theatre, portions are boring and now and then it becomes unintelligible due to poor enunciation under stress. But when viewing this production by the Senior Secondary Summer Theatre Workshop, special circumstances must be borne in mind.

Members of the workshop—who are the actors and have also constructed the set and worked on the costumes under direction—are senior secondary students from different parts of the province spending approximately three weeks learning a variety of techniques in a professionally oriented theatre atmosphere. For many, this is a first experience of its kind.

Looked at in this light what they have accomplished under the imaginative direction of Carl Hare, it becomes quite remarkable. The young people have acquired a grasp and some ability to project the murky atmosphere of Lorca's dark peasant tragedy.

Almost unrelieved in the original, Hare has inverted one scene—the wedding—and injected color through maximum use of villagers with movement, song and dance, a device that also involves all members of the workshop in active participation.

The climatic wedding scene which ends with the bride's flight with a former lover and the certainty of bloody vengeance, loses artistically in the inversion; Lorca had the festivities off-stage, a counterpoint to the dark thread being spun by the protagonists. In Hare's version the festivities are very much in the foreground and virtually obliterate the main theme. But once again one must remind oneself of the exigencies of the workshop situation.

Unquestionably a great deal was learned from the use of masks for the production. A valid, useful and often fascinating technique in character creation, in this instance it assisted the teenage girls in playing crones and old persons but had the effect of diminishing and obscuring the bride and bridegroom.

Lorca plays move at their own special tempos and rhythm which is quite unrelated to those of British or American plays, but there were many instances—the woodcutters in the final act for instance—when laggard cue pick-ups and rhythmic failure marred what was otherwise an effective concept of the moon-haunted forest search for the doomed lovers.

With this difficult assignment and given so much to learn in so short a period, there were a number of performances that revealed promise; among them Roberta Conklin as the bride, Victoria Down, Holly Champoux, Andie Palmer and Holly Frederickson.

Rugby, Handball in 1981 Games

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Diving and water skiing will be dropped from the 1981 Canada Summer Games and will be replaced by rugby and women's team handball.

Earl Dawson, secretary of the Games, said Monday the decision was made by a committee set up to decide which sports should be included in the Games.

"We have not been introducing new sports, so the committee suggested that we introduce two new ones in each Games," Dawson said, explaining that since the Winter Games began in Quebec City in 1967 and the Summer Games in Halifax in 1969 only 35 sports have been represented.

Water skiing officials have already protested and diving authorities are expected to react the same way. But Dawson said the decision will not be reconsidered.

As for the 1979 Winter Games in Brandon, Dawson said the same 16 sports will be included except that basketball will be for women instead of men.

"What we've been trying to do is bring the level of women's participation near that of the men and we've slowly been doing that since 1967."

Although there are few women team handball players in Canada, Dawson said the "team handball association feels it has a lot of young ladies interested and by 1981 they feel there could be a tremendous competition with all provinces and territories participating."

He added that some sports are untouchable. For example, there was some talk of dropping hockey from the 1975 Winter Games in Lethbridge, but "Canadians said no way, hockey has got to be in the Games."

"It would be very much like saying that at the Summer Games we've got to drop track and field because it's very well developed."

Along with rugby and team handball, sports at the next Summer Games will be archery, baseball, softball, canoeing, cycling, field hockey, lacrosse, sailing, shooting, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis, track and field and water polo.

Dawson said he had been asked why the Games simply do not add more sports. His reply was that it's already difficult to conduct 16 sports and the cost is also a consideration.

"There are 55 sports that would like to participate in summer and winter games. So for 1981 we started from scratch and put all the sports down and said, 'Well, this one must be in for various reasons — it's undergoing development and it's something Canadians demand.' It becomes a matter of weighing all the points and suddenly you have 16. You look over your list and you know two have gone but the two are not kicked out, as the water skiing people said. Someone had to go — it's as simple as that."

As for the future of the Games generally, Dawson said one conclusion he expects to be reached by a committee set up to consider the matter is that they are "the best thing we have for our young people to go on into international competition."

"It's probably the one thing in which federal and provincial governments work together to achieve what we have here in St. John's without any hassle or fights."

In the opinion of one expert, the answer is that the Games are having a positive effect although the pace of improvement may not be dramatic.

Geoff Gowan, technical director of the Coaching Association of Canada, was asked whether the 1977 Games have a generally higher calibre of athlete.

"From the sports I have looked at this week I would be optimistic," Gowan said. "I've seen a slight increase in sophistication of approach. . . . In track and field, for example, there is greater sophistication in the track events than in the field events."

There is a disparity between the four strong teams at the Summer Games — Ontario, British Columbia, Quebec and Alberta — and the other eight and one question is whether this is discouraging for such teams as Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Gorge Takes Lead In Baseball Final

Gorge Hotel mounted an 11-hit attack and took advantage of seven opposition errors Monday to defeat Greaves Movers 11-5 and take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League playoff final at Lambrick Park.

Fourth game of the series is scheduled for 6:15 p.m. tonight.

Derek Drinkwater, who relieved starter Rick Cook in the second inning, struck out five batters and allowed only three hits and one run the remainder of the distance for the pitching victory.

Russ Holmes led the Gorge attack with a double and two singles in three trips to the plate to drive in two runs while Brian Meadmore and Dale Marshall also had two RBI's each.

The seven errors commited by Greaves topped their previous playoff high of four.

Greaves led 5-4 until the bottom of the fourth inning, when Gorge came up with two runs to take command. Gorge then added some insurance by scoring four unanswered runs in the fifth and one in the sixth of a shortened contest.

If a fifth game is needed, it will be played aat 6:15 p.m. Wednesday at Lambrick.

Greaves	221 000—	5	7
Gorge	130 241—11	11	2

Terry Karpiuk 0-2, Rick Mark (6) and Mark, Jim Pickering (6); Rick Cook, Derek Drinkwater 1-1 (2) and Dan Vangyiswyk.

Defending Champions Eliminated

SURREY (CP) — Defending champion Trail, lost a five-run lead and joined Sherbrooke Fleurimont on the sidelines at the Canadian Little League baseball championships Monday.

Trail lost 10-8 to Glace Bay, N.S., while the Quebec team dropped a 13-6 decision to Whalley. It was the second loss for both teams and eliminated them from further play in the championship round of the double-knockout tournament.

Trail, representing British Columbia, led 5-0 after two innings, four of those runs coming on a grand-slam homer by Ray Ferraro, his fourth homer of the tournament. But the Maritime champions chipped away at the lead, scoring 10 runs in the next three innings.

Whalley, in the tournament as the host team, recorded 13 runs on 14 hits in eliminating Sherbrooke.

Ron Hill hit a three-run homer in the first inning for Whalley, and Guy Wolhosky followed suit in the fifth, breaking a 6-6 tie.

In today's action, Whalley meets Glace Bay.

Lethbridge Entry Bows To Taiwan

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Home runs by Chang-Teh Fhen, pitcher Huang-Ching Hui and pitcher Vic Madden led Taiwon and San Jose, Calif., to victory Monday in the Senior Little League baseball world series.

Taiwan defeated Canada, represented by a team from Lethbridge, Alta., 10-1, and San Jose beat Saville, N.Y., 14-3.

Third baseman Chang-Teh homered with one on in the third, and Huang Ching, who had 13 strikeouts, hit a solo homer in the same inning. Taiwan's six-run third also included a two-run single by leftfielder Chen-Chug Yin.

Canada's lone run came in the fourth when Barry Coghlin doubled with two out, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on another wild pitch.

Canada will play Saville today in the losers bracket and at night Aruba will meet Spain and Orlando, Fla., will battle Madison, Wis.

League Rejects Metros' Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Phil Woosnam of the North American Soccer League has rejected a protest filed by Toronto Metros — Croatia following the Metros 1-0 loss to Rochester in an playoff game Saturday.

In denying the protest, Woosnam said Monday that the game officials were wrong in allowing Rochester's Francisco Escos to continue playing after he twice was cautioned by the referee for fouls.

However, Woosnam said: "In investigating the precedents for this situation in soccer and in other sports, it was found that all similar protests have been denied on the ground that the error was a result of a referee's oversight."

Soccer rules state that referee's decision is final during a game and cannot be protested afterward.

"As a result of the oversight, the game officials have been suspended for the remainder of the playoffs and additional disciplinary action will be determined after a more complete investigation."

Veteran Race Driver Suffers Fatal Attack

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Stock car drivers who raced alongside Bobby Isaac during his heyday on the National Association of stock Cars Auto Racing Grand National circuit paid tribute Monday to the veteran driver, who died early Sunday of a heart attack.

"I reckon I'm about the closest friend he had," said David Pearson of the 43-year-old Isaac.

"He didn't make friends easily in racing, but that was just Bobby's way. Race drivers try not to get too close, but sometimes you do. Bobby was doing what he liked. That's the way to go."

Issac was stricken at Catawba Memorial Hospital in Hickory, N.C., after leaving a late-model sportsman race because of heat exhaustion.

Isaac, who launched his driving career in 1955 on the Hickory Speedway and was the 1970 Grand National NASCAR champion, was running fourth in the Winston 200 at the speedway Saturday night when he left the race with about 10 miles to go.

Dr. George Tolhurst, who treated Isaac at the hospital, said the driver later appeared to be recovering from the effects of the heat.

"We thought he would do all right, and then about midnight he suffered a cardiac arrest," the physician said.

Bombers Drop Disappointment

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers made a couple of roster changes Monday as they prepare for their Western Football Conference game against British Columbia Lions Wednesday night.

Cut from the lineup was Joey Walters, a five-foot-ten 180-pound wide receiver from Clemson University who has disappointed the coaches with his performance in his rookie year.

Signed to replace Walters is the man he beat out for the job after training camp this year, Mike Washington, a five-foot-nine 170-pounder from Texas Lutheran.

How many times have you decided to quit smoking?

At one time or another most people who smoke talk about giving it up.

Some, we don't know how many, actually stop. Others are simply not ready to lose forever the enjoyment a cigarette can bring.

If you are one of those who still value the pleasure of smoking, you might want to consider Vantage.

When you smoke Vantage you get the full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. The Vantage filter, which is based on a new design concept, lets real taste come through. Vantage gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.

Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked—avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Bates: A Great Record Rocks: Ready and Able

The weekend in review:

While Victoria McDonalds were in a state of mourning over their loss of the right to continue the defence of the national junior lacrosse championship they won last year, general-manager Bob Reid woke up Monday morning after Sunday night's game with a hopeful outlook for the future.

"I can see a glimmer of light," he said. "And that's something I couldn't see in mid-season when we were losing all those players."

"Now, I think we've got some pretty good kids for next year," he said of the team that finished the season. Earlier, injuries, defections, work commitments, et al, had McDonalds playing below peak strength much of the time and Reid is the first to admit "we weren't playing that well."

Judging by the two games McDonalds played here in the semi-final series against league-champion Burnaby Cablevision, McDonalds weren't that far away from being contenders.

It was mainly that they were up against a better team and a bigger team, plus the fact that they never really did get their odd-man play to function as it should. That fact alone hurt them dearly in the playoffs. Now it's next year and good luck to Cablevision. Against New Westminster they may need it.

★ ★ ★

So one national champion is out, but another is still in. It may sound like a broken record to say that Bates deserve to be where they are — in the nationals men's softball championships again. But this is a remarkable record of consistency by any standard. What other club side in the country can match six trips in succession to a national championship, in any sport?

In the meantime, of course, everyone should recall that Bates also own a share of the world softball title and, when they take the field at Hull, Quebec, next week, they will be shooting for an unprecedented third straight Canadian championship. That's B.C. Hall of Fame stuff.

Much of the credit of course must go to sponsor Herb Bate, who started it all, and manager-coach Joe Patterson, who has been the designer of the successful game-plan that has kept the team at the top.

Then, there's the thought here, that one of the most-overlooked players on the team, from week to week, and year to year, has to be pitcher Dave Ruthowsky.

He's No. 1, whether it's as a starter or in relief, and it would be interesting to know the number of innings he has pitched for the team this year, and in the past.

And the old guard should be pleased, too, to see husky Harvey stevenson return to form. Harvey was all set to pack it up a couple of years back. But who was the MVP in Abbotsford on the weekend? "Big Harv". And that was good to see.

★ ★ ★

It would be deserving, too, if the lacrosse fans gave the Shamrocks the tumble they have earned. Last year, the Irish won the league championship and this season they only missed by one point. That's not bad in any consistency report. And now, with a chance to get into a national final, a first time for many of the players, the Shamrocks have the right to feel they belong. As a matter of fact, the lacrosse during this season has been the finest in many years, by all the clubs, and the upcoming finals between the Shamrocks and either Vancouver Burrards or New Westminster Salmonbellies, should be a hummer.

★ ★ ★

Hanjit Dillon of the Shamrocks, too, is deserving of more than passing mention. With little fanfare, Dillon last weekend moved into seventh place among the all-time scoring leaders in the Western Lacrosse Association. That's exalted company when it's realized that those above him are fellows such as Paul Parnell (1,801 points), Wayne Goss (1,390 plus whatever he has scored in this year's playoffs); Cliff Sepka (1,327), Jack Bionda (1,189), Mike Gates (1,113) and Whitey Severson (1,107). Dillon has 1,070 and is still climbing. Think of who is below him! It may be interesting as well to learn that Gates is one of the players who will be elevated to the lacrosse hall of fame this year. The others from this area are Arnie Dugan of Nanaimo, Pete Meehan of New Westminster and statistician Stan Shillington in the builders category.

It goes without saying that Ranjie deserves to be right there himself one day.

But first things first. And the Shamrocks do seem they have tightened up considerably during the past few weeks; and it could be they are approaching their peak at the proper time.

Let's see now . . . it was back in . . . But, hoo there boy, there's still much work to be done.

Shamrocks Rout A's Early

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks played their best lacrosse of the season in the first period of Monday night's Western Lacrosse Association playoff game at Memorial Arena against Coquitlam Adanacs and then protected themselves as best they could in the roughhouse that followed.

The Shamrocks scored 11 goals to two for the Adanacs in the opening 20 minutes en route to a smashing 22-11 victory and a berth in the league playoff final against the winner of the Vancouver-New Westminster series.

Shamrocks set a new playoff record for points, 58 on their 22 goals and 36 assists. The old Mark of 56 was held by New Westminster.

The Irish won the best-of-seven series four games to one.

Burrards lead the other best-of-seven semi-final, three games to one. The fifth game is scheduled at Kerrisdale Arena tonight.

It will be Victoria's first chance in the final under coach Nirmal Dillon who said he felt the tea mreached its peak in that opening period. After thatr, it was to be expected that Coquitlam would play it rough.

Coach Bob Salt of the Adanacs said he didn't believe his team could come out as flat as it did and he admitted the game was, to all intent, over after first outburst by the Rocks.

"They played well," he said, "and it should be a good series against Vancouver." Salt was not giving the Salmonbellies much chance of upsetting the league champions. "Burrards are too strong," he said.

Sophomore Norm Baker of the Shamrocks was the individual scoring star of the game as he hit for three goals in the first period and five in the game. He also had three assists for his best night ever in the WLA.

"I had a couple of six-goal nights in junior," he recalled, "but nothing like this."

Joe McCrea, who joined the team late in the season, also scored three goals in that opening period while Bill Marechek added a pair.

The killing point for Coquitlam came with the Shamrocks leading 5-1 and Terry Sanderson of the Rocks in the penalty box at 6:47.

Baker took a pass from Ivan Thompson to get his third goal at 6:56 with the Irish shorthanded. McCrea then broke clear to take a pass from Ranjit Dillon for a second shorthanded goal and it was McCrea again just as Sanderson was leaving the box who gave the Rocks their third goal in less than two minutes.

That made it 8-1 before the halfway mark of the period and as Salt said "the writing was on the wall."

The Shamrocks had scored six goals in four minutes and 38 seconds.

After the opening period, Dillon replaced goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer with George Grover, but the Rocks didn't afford Grover with the same type of protection they had given Smeltzer, and the Adanacs started back with three goals.

Ron MacNeil called a halt with a goal at 7:25 of the period, the defence tightened and the Rocys were on top 16-7 after two.

Grover was felled with a rising shot from Nick Delmonico at 7:47 of the third period and carried from the floor.

The ball hit him in the throat which was badly bruised and swollen after the game.

Otherwise, he appeared to be all right and was to undergo further examination today.

Smeltzer replaced Grover and was solid the rest of the way as he had been earlier.

The game, unfortunately, had deteriorated by this time as it so often does when a team is dying and on the way out; and some of the checking was vicious indeed. There was a continuous parade to the penalty box and the officials could have called twice as much as they did. Each team drew 50 minutes in penalties.

The Shamrocks gave back much of what they received but more in a defensive mode.

The good news was that every Shamrock player, but one, Dave Lowdon, hit the score sheet.

MacNeil, who was a particular target of the Adanacs engaged in two fights, had two majors and was tagged with a 10-minute misconduct penalty, scored three goals.

Thompson, who had been nothing short of brilliant since the playoffs started, scored two goals and had three assists to run his playoff total to 15 goals and 14 assists for 29 points in five games.

Doug Angrove and Steve Buckley, two players recruited from the junior McDonalds, each scored a goal as did Chris Hall, Sanderson, Dan Green and Pete Rushton.

Dillon, Green and Sanderson each had five assists.

Dave Durante, Frank Nielson and Randy Bryan each scored two for Coquitlam.

Shamrocks last played in the WLA final in 1975 under coach Archie Browning, losing to Vancouver Burrards. Last year, Burrards eliminated the Shamrocks in seven games in the semi-finals.

Dillon said the Shamrocks should be at full strength for the final as both Mike Beaulac (broken finger) and Charn Dhillon (sprained ankle) have been cleared to play. Grover's injury was the only trouble spot Monday.

Dates of the final have not been set pending result of the Burrards-Salmonbellies series but, under present arrangements, the playoff must be concluded by Sept. 2.

The Mann cup national final is tentatively scheduled to start in the home of the western champion, Sept. 4 and must be concluded by Sept. 13. It is a best-of-seven series.

Shamrocks last won the Mann Cup in 1957.

Pitchers Wield Big Sticks

ST. JOHN's, Nfld. (CP) — Pitchers aren't generally regarded as clutch hitters but that was the image that emerged Monday after the opening-day women's softball program at the 1977 Canada Summer Games.

Three pitchers helped their own cause by driving in the winning runs, including Lynne LeMessurier of Richmond, B.C., who scattered six hits over a 12-inning stretch and singled home the only run to give British Columbia a 1-0 victory over Quebec.

Nova Scotia edged British Columbia 5-4 as Debra Renouf of East Chezzetcook gave up six hits and scored the winner in the bottom of the eighth inning.

And Prince Edward Island improved its record to 1-1 with a 1-0 victory over Newfoundland as Sharan MacLure of Charlottetown hurled a one-hitter and drove in Debbie Fitzpatrick, also of Charlottetown, with the winning run in the top of the fourth. Loser Patty Polych of St. John's gave up only two hits.

Manitoba, which defeated Nova Scotia 4-0 with Josephine Novalkowski of Winnipeg pitching a five-hitter, leads the A division with a 2-0 mark, the only undefeated team in that section.

Saskatchewan, the 1973 champion which shut out New Brunswick 4-0 on a two-hitter by Brenda Staniforth of Lashburn, and Ontario share top spot in the B division with 1-0 records.

Besides softball, competition in two other team sports saw the defending Games champions emerge undefeated.

Ontario whipped New Brunswick 20-8 in the morning and beat Quebec 17-14 at night to embark on its defence of the lacrosse title. In soccer, B.C. recorded a resounding 7-1 win over Alberta.

Competition in all team sports continues today as well as the opening programs in cycling, swimming, diving and canoeing. Shooting begins Wednesday.

In lacrosse, the medal winners from 1973 came through the second day of play with undefeated 2-0 marks and the competition appears to be a rerun of last time out.

But officials for all three teams, Ontario, B.C., and Nova Scotia, were cautious about predicting the outcome, although Bill Cook said he felt his Burnaby-based B.C. club team has a chance to go all the way.

"Ontario definitely will be ones to beat but I think we'll be in the final. That, of course, depends on howwe do against Nova Scotia."

B.C. doesn't meet Nova Scotia until Wednesday and Mike Lothian, the Halifax coach, wasn't giving anything away after his squad handed Newfoundland an embarrassing 23-2 beating.

"It's one thing playing teams like these but Ontario and B.C. are another matter," he said. "We've just got to hope we play our best games at the right time."

Mike McKee scored six goals to lead Scarborough Saints to victory against New Brunswick and added five more against Quebec. McKee's brother Ward scored six in the hard-fought Quebec game.

B.C. and Nova Scotia are the only undefeated squads in the B division, both with four points.

B.C. defeated Saskatchewan 18-11 on Gary Purdon's six-goal effort while Nova Scotia defeated Saskatchewan 20-5 in a morning game before trouncing Newfoundland later in the day.

In soccer, B.C. led 6-0 at halftime en route to its opening game victory. Bruce Miller and Ello Ciaccia both of Vancouver, scored two goals each and Andrew Ferguson of Powell River, Jack Attadia of Vancouver and Bill McLeod of Coquitlam scored one each for B.C. while Doug Potiuk of Edmonton replied for Alberta in the 75th minute.

Mike Hardy, Ian Bridge, Gordon Reading and Doug Wellburn of Victoria are members of the B.C. team.

B.C. is tied with Quebec and New Brunswick for first place in the A division, all three teams with 1-0 records.

Tasso Kousoukos of Montreal, in the first half, and Graziano Cornolo, in the second half, scored the Quebec goals in its 2-1 victory over Alberta. Tony Pezneker of Calgary replied for Alberta in the 74th minute.

New Brunswick recorded its 2-0 shutout of P.E.I. on a firsthalf goal by Robbie MacFarlane of Saint John in the 39th minute and a second-half marker by Don Wishart, also of Saint John.

Nova Scotia and Newfoundland share the B division with four points each after two opening-day wins.

Newfoundland, which should provide its strongest showing of the Games in this sport, defeated Manitoba 1-0 on a goal by Joseph Turpin in the 65th before beating Saskatchewan 2-0 on another goal by Turpin and one by Rudy Slaney, both in the second half.

WHA Considers Raiding Juniors

TORONTO (CP) — Two World Hockey Association officials—Howard Baldwin and William DeWitt—indicated Monday that the league may review its stand on signing under-age junior players.

Baldwin, WHA vice-president and managing general partner of New England Whalers, said there is a "good possibility further signings would result."

Any signings would refuel antagonism that existed between the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League and the WHA after the professional league signed three under-age juniors in 1975. Mark Napier, John Tonelli and Gord Roberts, a defenceman with Victoria Cougars, were 18 when they signed WHA contract.

The National Hockey League, which turned down applications from six WHA teams in a merger attempt last week, does not sign players until they are 20 years of age.

"This age thing is just arbitrary," Baldwin said in a telephone interview from Hartford, Conn. "It's an arbitrary date and just that.

"Some players are capable of playing at 16 while others still are not capable at 21. If my general manager (Jack Kelley) shows me it makes sense and it is a move designed to strengthen the Whalers, we will weigh the ramifications and go from there."

Dewitt said that under-age players have helped strengthen the WHA and he saw no reason why the signings should be discontinued.

Baldwin and DeWitt will meet with other WHA team officials in Montreal today to discuss reorganizational problems associated with the failed merger attempt with the NHL.

Crime Fighter Wins

VANCOUVER (CP)—The first of the seven-race endurance series, which culminates in the 2½ miles Au Revoir on closing day Oct. 15, was run Monday night at Exhibition Park.

The distance of the series opener was 1⅛ miles and it wasn't one of the tough old geldings that usually predominate that won. It was a three-year-old, followed across the line by a filly.

The horse which scored the upset was Crime Fighter, a Kentucky bred son of Marshua's Dancer who was bought by the British Columbia Jockey Club and later resold to Mrs. A Kehler and trained by Joe Johnstone.

Crime Fighter didn't live up to his breeding and had 10 starts this season before winning his last race for a $2,500 claiming tag.

The win aboard Crime Fighter was the first as a journeyman rider for Robert Stein. (See results, entries on page 11).

Replacements Spark Twins' Win

By The Associated Press

Baltimore Orioles found a way of getting Minnesota's Rod Carew out of the lineup. And now they're sorry.

Carew, the American League's leading hitter, was sitting on the Minnesota bench along with Lyman Bostock when the Twins took the field against Baltimore on Monday night. Twins manager Gene Mauch said he rested Carew "because every time he plays a full series in Baltimore his allergies act up."

Craig Kusick and Bob Gorinski started for Carew and Bostock and helped lead the Twins to a 13-9 victory over the Orioles that saw a record seven home runs soar out of Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

After Kusick blasted two home runs and knocked in five runs, Carew batted for him in the eighth and delivered a run-scoring single. Gorinski smashed a two-run homer before Bostock pinch-hit for him and doubled, later coming around to score.

The victory, coupled with New York Yankees 6-2 win over Chicago White Sox, gave the Twins the AL West lead by half a game.

In other American League games Monday, Boston Red Sox nipped Kansas City Royals 2-1, California Angels defeated Toronto Blue Jays 7-4, Cleveland Indians downed Oakland A's 7-2, Detroit Tigers clobbered Seattle Mariners 13-1 and Milwaukee Brewers edged Texas Rangers 6-5.

In the National League, Cincinnati Reds beat San Diego Padres 3-0 to save themselves from falling back to the .500 mark—a modest figure not in keeping with their recent glory years.

The Reds won as many as 108 games in one season during their high-riding, five-year stretch from 1972 through 1976. They captured three National League pennants and two World Series in that period.

The Reds victory improved their record to 60-58 and left them 11 games behind Los Angeles after the Dodgers dropped a 6-3 decision to San Francisco Giants.

In other National League games, New York Mets defeated St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and Houston Astros walloped Atlanta Braves 15-3.

Kusick's three-run homer capped Minnesota's five-run sixth inning and chased loser Rudy May, 13-11, who also gave up Gorinski's two-run shot.

George Scott belted his 29th homer and Dwight Evans singled home the winning run as Boston edged Kansas City.

Graig Nettles' two-run single backed the six-hit pitching of Mike Torrez, 13-10, as New York knocked Chicago out of the AL West lead. It was Torrez's fifth straight complete game victory.

Milt May drove in five runs with a grand slam home run and a sacrifice fly while Ben Oglivie and Ron LeFlore added two-run shots in Detroit's rout of Seattle.

A two-run homer by Tony Solaita helped California's Frank Tanana overcome a shaky start and defeat Toronto. Tanana, 14-7, struck out 11 while giving up 11 hits.

Tanana was roughed up for two runs on three hits in the first inning and gave up two more runs in the fourth.

Andy Etchebarren, who had only 19 hits before the game this season, accounted for three of the nine California hits.

Rick Waits, Don Hood and Sid Monge combined to toss a six-hitter as Cleveland handed Oakland its 16th loss in its last 17 games. It was the Indians' third consecutive victory and seventh in its last eight games.

Sal Bando's run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning as Milwaukee edged Texas. The Rangers had a 5-0 lead going into the bottom of the fourth.

'ASHES' STAY IN ENGLAND

LEEDS, England (Reuter) — England beat Australia by an innings and 85 runs in the fourth cricket test Monday to regain The Ashes.

Australia was bowled out for 248 in its second innings before tea to give England its third successive win in the five-match series with more than a day to spare.

Mike Brierley becomes the third English captain since the Second World War to recapture cricket's most coveted trophy, which Australia held since 1975.

The Australians, led by wicketkeeper Rod Marsh, tried stubbornly to postpone England's triumph after rain held up play until after lunch.

Marsh hit a 63 but when he was last man out, caught by Derek Randall, it was all over

The Ashes, emblematic of victory in Test series between England and Australia, are the burnt remains of a bail used in one of the matches in the 1882-83 series in Australia. They are contained in an urn kept at Lord's cricket ground in London.

Scores: England 436; Australia 103 and 248.

PGA's New Champion Hush-Hush B.C. Visitor

Sunday's big winner in golf was today's visitor in Vancouver.

Lanny Wadkins, winner of the 59th Professional Golfers' Association championshp in Sunday's sudden-death playoff victory over Gene Littler, was scheduled to play 18 holes at Point Grey.

It's supposed to hush-hush, and this afternoon's round is not likely to draw the crowds that watched him win the PGA title at Pebble Beach. The 27-year-old pro is under contract to the Chiquita banana company and the Vancouver visit was arranged long before Sunday's big victory.

Wadkins is scheduled to play with several Vancouver-area banana-buyers, going six holes with one bunch, the next six with another group and finishing off the round with the final lot.

Sunday's PGA victory is a big thing for Wadkins. In addition to qualifying for the Ryder and World Cup teams, Wadkins now is exempt from qualifying on the tour for the next 10 years and for the PGA championship for a lifetime.

The 10-year exemption is worth much more than the $45,000 cheque he pocketed Sunday.

Wadkins broke into the tour with a bang, winning three titles and more than $300,000 in his first two seasons. A gall bladder operation two years ago contributed towards a gradual erosion of his game.

When he failed to make the list of top 60 money-winners last year, he fell fro mexempt status. That meant Wadkins, one of golf's "Young Lions," drifted back into the ranks of the rabbits — the Monday morning qualifiers who have to battle hard every week just to earn a spot in the tournament fields.

Now, however, Wadkins is without that worry. For at least 10 years.

Evan (the Cat) Williams successfully defended his long-drive championship last week but the six-foot-six belter from Leonia, N.J., didn't find much success in the Alberta Open at the weekend.

Williams, who showed off his talents at Gorge Vale earlier this year, kept the PGA long-drive championship by hitting one ball 353 yards, 24 inches at Pebble Beach last week.

He then flew to Calgary for a taste of the Canadian tour. He scored rounds of 78, 72 and 75 to finish 21 shots behind the winnner, Kelowna's Dave Barr.

Williams is tentatively entered in the B.C. Open which starts Friday at Marine Drive

Wide-Open Test In Women's Golf

BOISBRIAND, Que. (CP) — The Canadian women's amateur golf championship starting Wednesday on the par-73, 6,015-yard Hillsdale Golf and Country Club course promises to be a wide-open affair.

The 64th championship, which will incorporate the provincial team championship in the first two rounds of the 72-hole event, has a field of 96 golfers with handicaps of 15 or better.

The title is up for grabs as defending champion Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., has joined the professional ranks, along with Dale Shaw of Victoria.

Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., who has won the event 11 times and is a nine-time winner of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association closed championship, has informed the CLGA that she will not be able to play because of family commitments.

But the field includes 25 golfers with handicaps of scratch to three, an indication of how tough the battle for Massey's crown could be. One of them is Debora Skelly of Woodlake, Tex., with a two-handicap. Skelly's sister Pamela also is entered with a six-handicap.

Stacey West of Thornhill, Ont., winner of the Canadian junior championship at Manotick, Ont., last week, will compete. West capped her junior career with her second consecutive national title.

The team championship Wednesday and Thursday will feature a team of four golfers representing each of the 10 provinces.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

CONCENTRATION is etched on face of Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa as she snaps backhand towards third-seeded Cathy May of United States in opening-round play Monday at Canadian Open Tennis championships in Toronto. Blackwood lost to May. (CP wirephoto).

Difficult Rival Forces Talented Texan to Work

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Scanlon, a 20-year-old Texas native, learned Monday that calling the shots in a tennis match isn't as desirable as it appears.

"It sure was a different kind of match than I'm used to," the former U.S. college champion said after beating Patrick Proisy of France 2-6, 6-4, 6-3 in a first-round men's singles match at the $160,000 Canadian Open tennis tournament.

"I was dictating the whole match point by point," the 16th-seeded Scanlon said. "I was forced to play good shots to win because he was so consistent and at the same time he never missed, he never made any errors."

Scanlon defeated Ilie Nastase of Romania twice this year and also has scored impressive wins over U.S. clay-court specialist Harold Solomon, Australians Phil Dent and Ross Case, South African Ray Moore and Italy's Adriano Panatta.

There were no major surprises on the opening day of the tournament as four other male seeds all advanced with a minimum of effort.

Fifth-seeded Corrado Barazzutti of Italy beat Brian Teacher of the United States 6-1, 7-5, seventh-seeded Dent beat Doug Palm of Sweden 6-2, 6-4, eight-seeded John Alexander of Australia beat Bob Bettauer, a 21-year-old from Vancouver, 6-1, 6-0, and No. 12 seed Jeff Borowiak of the U.S. beat countryman Fred McNair 6-4, 6-0.

Colombia's Ivan Molina upset 11th-seeded Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 6-1, 1-6, 6-2. In the only other upset of the day, Britain's Mark Cox, the No. 4 seed, lost to Butch Seewagen of the United States, 7-6, 6-3.

Cox, who lived in White Rock, B.C., for several years before moving back to Britain, was returning from a four-week layoff from tournament play.

Victor Pecci of Paraguay, who distinguished himself in Toronto last year by beating Raul Ramirez of Mexico, beat India's Vijay Amritraj 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

At the end of their match, the crowd of more than 3,300 at the York University Tennis Centre gave both a standing ovation.

In women's action, Italian Open winner Janet Newberry of the U.S. beat the No. 5 seed, West Germany's Iris Reidel, 6-4, 6-3, and No. 8 seed Yvonne Vermaak beat Pam Teeguarden of the U.S. 7-6, 6-3.

Canadian national champion Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa played scrappy tennis but succumbed to the deceptive attack of No. 3 seed Kathy May of the U.S. 6-1, 6-3.

Ramirez, the top seed in the men' draw, sees first-round action today, as does Manuel Orantes of Spain, who beat Jimmy Connors for the U.S. clay court title last week.

Heading the list of women competing for the $6,000 singles prize are Rosie Casals of the U.S., defending champion Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and Evonne Goolagong Cawley, who is making a comeback after giving birth to her first child. All will play their first-round matches today.

Withdrawal of Stars Upsets Net Director

TORONTO (CP)—A flood of weekend withdrawals from the Canadian Open tennis championships has upset tournament director Don Fontana.

"There's plenty of good guys in tennis, but just enough turkeys to hurt it," Fontana said.

He lost defending champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina because of fatigue. It was the same reason Vilas gave in 1975 when he was also the defending champion.

During the weekend Fontana was confronted with the withdrawl of seven more players, including three lower men's seeds and two significant woman entries.

Gone were 13th-seeded Balazs Taroczy of Hungary, Spain's 14th-seeded Jose Higueras, No. 15 seed Cliff Richey of the United States, Mark Edmonson of Australia, John Uyill of South Africa, women's seventh seed Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia, and Nancy Richey, Cliff's sister and the losing finalist at last weekend's U.S. clay court championships in Indianapolis.

The tournament opened Monday.

Games List Now at 23

EDMONTON (CP) — Trinidad and Tobago and Antigua have accepted invitations to participate in the 1978 Commonwealth Games here.

The letters of acceptance received recently from the two Caribbean countries brings to 23 the number of countries which have agreed to send teams.

No letters of acceptance have been received so far from African commonwealth countries.

AMERICA'S CUP TRIALS

The Serious Stage

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Records from June and July turn to spindrift today when the 12-metre yachts Courageous and Enterprise begin the first day of final trials for America's Cup defence candidates.

The New York Yacht Club, which has the task of selecting a defender for the 26-year-old trophy, made the initial pairings Monday night.

Courageous, successful defender in 1974, finished the June preliminary and July observation trials with the best over-all record against Enterprise and Independence.

But America's Cup history shows early success can be meaningless. For instance, Intrepid went 11-9 against Courageous in 1974, but Courageous was selected as the defender after wining five of the last nine final races.

Skippered this year by Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner, Courageous had 14 wins and seven losses in June and July Enterprise, newest of the three yachts, stood 11-12 over all and Independence was 7-13.

However, in the July series, Courageous and Enterprise were tied with 7-6 records. Independence stood 5-7 for the month.

The finals for Courageous, Enterprise and Independence end Sept. 5 with the foreign finals to finish Sept. 8. The defender and challenger begin duelling in a best four-of-seven series Sept. 13.

A special protest committee late Monday denied a Swedish protest filed after the 12-metre Sverige snapped its aluminum mast and tore its mainsail in heavy seas during a Sunday race.

Sverige, in a tight battle with Australia's Gretel II for a berth in the foreign final trials, claimed the Sunday races should have been called because of nasty weather.

Swedish spokesman Lars Ahren said Sverige will resume competition today with spare sails and a new mast installed Monday afternoon.

Twice Cut, Painter Gets Try with Esks

EDMONTON (CP) — Defensive halfback Roy Painter, cut twice this year by Edmonton Eskimos, will see action with the team tonight against Calgary Stampeders in a Western Football Conference game.

Eskimo coach Hugh Campbell, needing to fill a hole created when Joe Hollimon separated a shoulder in last week's victory over British Columbia Lions, announced that Painter has been put on the roster again after a five-day trial.

In a news conference Monday, Campbell said Painter—who was first cut during training camp and again after the Eskimos' first league game— will split defensive half and cornerback duties with Ed Jones.

Hollimon, a valuable defensive player, will also be missed running back punts. Campbell said Howard Strickland will fill in with regular kick-off and punt return man Larry Highbaugh.

Calgary will be going into the game without the services of 10-year veteran Rudy Linterman, who was traded earlier to Toronto Argonauts for linebacker Tom Chandler and defensive back Wayne Allison.

Stampeders coach Jack Gotta said Linterman had to go in the trade because the club needed to fill a vacancy created by an injury to linebacker Jim Baker.

Chandler said he believes he can play in Baker's place.

"I think I can play with 75 per cent of the linebackers in any league," he said.

"I'm no superstar but I am a darned good solid linebacker."

Several Calgary jobs will be on the line in the game. Allison's arrival will force Gotta to drop a Canadian defensive back. Allison practised on the left side during the weekend, a position formerly occupied by rookie Jim Harris, who was not at Sunday's workout.

The Stampeders will probably go with three imports among the front four in an effort to step up their pass rush against Eskimo quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman.

Jody Medford, a 23-year-old from Rice University, is expected to switch from offence to join John Helton and Willie Martin. Canadian rookie Bryan McLaughlin could see action on offence.

Gotta has high hopes for Brian Gervais, a 26-year-old who will replace Linterman at slotback.

"All he needs is playing time," said Gotta.

The game will be televised on the CBC western network.

In Ottawa, the Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger Cats have shaken up their teams in preparation for tonight's first encounter of the season at Lansdowne Park.

The teams are tied for last place with records of one win and three losses and have been plagued by interceptions and fumbles.

Ottawa placed veteran middle-linebacker Mark Kosmos on waivers and reactivated offensive tackle Ken Moore, injured during the exhibition season.

The defending Grey Cup champions, still looking for a replacement for all-star running-back Art Green, who jumped to Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League, signed Argo castoff Richard Holmes.

Holmes will share offensive backfield duties with Larry Cates.

Cates was with Calgary Stampeders before joining the Riders.

Hamilton has signed John Harvey to a one-year contract. The Tiger Cats, who have scored only 44 points in four regular season games, need the explosive running back to complement halfback Jimm Edwards.

This year, Harvey was suspended twice by the Argos for missing practice before being cut by the Argos before the season started.

Harvey, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards with Montreal Alouettes in 1973, was a late cut by Cleveland Browns of the NFL last week.

Kicker for Bucs

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers, stung by last week's poor showing in the place-kicker category, have signed Tampa Bay Rowdies soccer player Derek Smethurst.

Canucks Sign Hanlon To Two-Year Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League Monday announced the signing of Glen Hanlon of Brandon to a two-year contract.

The 20-year-old Goaltender was the Canucks' third-round choice in the 1977 amateur draft.

Hanlon appeared in 65 games with Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League last season, posting a 3.9 goals-against average and recording four shutouts.

Attendance Record Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolstered by the addition of franchises in Seattle and Toronto, the American League has set an all-time attendance record.

Weekend attendances of more than 556,800 fans pushed the league's total for the 1977 baseball season to 14,678,375, surpassing the record of 14,657,802 set of last year.

Much of the increase comes from expansion in Toronto and Seattle, where the combined attedance is about 2.4 million.

Boy Inventor in Running

Electronic Zap for Weeds May Win Him the $10,000

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

One of 35 electronic inventions by 15-year-old Barry Cameron of 3290 Parker in Saanich has put him among the contenders for the $10,000 prize the B.C. government is offering for a solution to the Eurasian Milfoil weed problem.

Sponsored by the environment department, the prize will be awarded to the best of the 22 solutions proposed by inventors to rid the Okanagan Valley and other provincial lakes of the weed which is encroaching into prime recreational spots.

The suggestions ranged from steaming to sandblasting to rotating rakes, but Barry, who will enter Grade 11 at Claremont next month, designed a thermal sonic carrier — a TV camera that would zap electricity through the infested areas to raise the temperature of the plants and kill them.

Barry explained today his idea is based on the cell structure of plants which breaks down under heat.

The electric current won't be dangerous to fish and other aquatic animals because there is a ground bar to control the current.

And it won't raise the temperature of the lake because the circuit acts so quickly.

The television camera can also work as a scanner, so it has a double purpose, he said. "And it's economical, too."

Barry didn't seem too excited about the possibility of winning the $10,000 first prize.

The money isn't as important as gaining respectability as an inventor, he said. When you're only 15, it's hard to get people to take your ideas seriously.

"It's only in the last 2½ months I've started to be recognized," he said.

His thermal sonic carrier is just one of 35 inventions mostly involving electronics and physics.

The prize money would give him the backing to get on with other inventions.

The $10,000 would help with technical advancements. Barry says he would like more sophisticated electrical equipment that would make his home experiments more accurate and less time consuming.

Yet surprisingly the young electronic wizard doesn't do all that well at school.

But Barry says it's intentional.

"I keep my grades to lower standards because I do most of my work (on the projects) at home."

He said if he got top marks, all his energies would have to go to keeping them up.

"I like school and I like my projects. I have to keep them in balance."

Other inventors vying for the $10,000 prize include Errol Stewart of Rockland, Ont., who sent a scale model of his dredging device, and an unidentified man who suggested suffocating the weeds with plastic sheets.

Gordon Jennens, 54, of Kelowna, decided not to enter the contest because the machine he is developing has already cost $34,000 and he said it would not be worth his while to surrender its rights to the government if he won the first prize.

"The machine will remove all the weeds, roots, stems and all," he said. "It's something entirely new and in no way resembles a dredge."

Jennens already has a government contract to clear the milfoil from a small part of the lake.

The provincial government created a controversy this summer when it began spraying 2,4-D in Okanagan and Skaha Lakes in an effort to kill the milfoil.

Environmentalists criticized the spraying saying the herbicide had not been thoroughly tested and may be linked with cancer.

It is believed the weed infestation of Okanagan Lake has spread from 1,000 acres last year, to about 2,000 this year.

Milfoil thrives on nitrogen and phosphorous residues of human and industrial wastes.

When Environment Minister James Nielsen announced the $10,000 contest in May, he said if the designer could build the machine, there would be an additional $50,000.

ONE WAY to beat the heat is to take a go-kart spin and make your own breeze as this unidentified woman did at Fun City in Saanich. It works every time. (John McKay photo).

Lum Won't Buy 90-Day Freeze On Projects

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today seven ratepayers' associations which on Monday demanded a 90-day freeze on four major projects are trying to run the council . . . and the municipality.

"These ratepayers' associations want to be an unofficial council and make official decisions. Under the democratic process an elected council must look at a municipality as a whole . . . not areas separately," he said.

Lum was referring to a joint statement issued at a press conference called by the executives of the Broadmead Ratepayers' Association, Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association, Gordon Head and District Ratepayers' Association, Gorge-Tillicum Ratepayers' Group, North Quadra Land Use Protection Association and the Royal Oak Ratepayers' Association.

They want a 90-day freeze on the Royal Oak industrial park, Broadmead's housing project on Minnie Mountain at Ten Mile Point, the proposed regional shopping centre (to be built at either Broadmead or Tillicum) and council's plan to rezone in the North Quadra area.

Lum said he could see no reason for a freeze because no specific applications have come before council on any of these proposals.

Referring to the Royal Oak industrial park project, Lum said this had been initiated by council in the 1960s when Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis was mayor and had received the blessing of the Capital Regional District and the provincial government.

"It's not something being sprung on the people by this council," he said.

LUM
. . . no applications

He refuted the association representatives' contention that they had been denied access to municipal reports.

"Whatever studies we have have been made available but we can't hand out documents that don't belong to us," he said.

He said the Tillicum developers have made theirs available and Broadmead will make documents available on request.

Bill Neilson, chairman of the combined ratepayers' groups, said they are forming a common front because of a "festering sense of frustration."

He said the council "seems to be quite incapable of handling complex development issues."

He and the other representatives said their groups are fed up with a lack of information. They criticized the lands planning and housing committee for not waiting for impact studies to be made when considering large projects.

"Time after time, we really wonder whether the homework has been done before the rumor mills and public statements take over," Neilson said.

In a joint statement, the associations, which represent between 2,000 and 3,000 taxpayers, said:

"The issue we are facing is not development versus non-development. The real issue is the desperate and urgent need for competent analysis and democratic handling of these major questions by council.

"During the 90-day freeze, we want a little sunshine and fresh air to come to Saanich. We want all reports, studies, impact statements and other documents on these projects prepared at taxpayers' expense to be made public.

"If such detailed studies have not been prepared, then we want that information too, for it is our firm belief that more than a few of these proposals are being shunted along at a very speedy pace without even the barest professional assessment."

Quadra Wins Delay

Public pressure has forced Saanich council to put off for a month a public hearing on its bid to rezone 100 acres in North Quadra for single-family homes.

The hearing, which was to have been held Aug. 29, will now take place in late September.

Last week, Mayor Ed Lum succumbed to pressure and agreed to postpone an Aug. 22 public hearing on the official community plan from Aug. 22 to Sept. 7 so that all members of council can be present.

Ald. Robert Cameron, a school teacher, is on vacation.)

Council is planning rezoning for 271 acres in the North Quadra area.

Residents are concerned that the 100-acre development will put undue strain on schools in their area.

Last week Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of the lands, planning and housing committee, arranged a meeting of his committee, school officials and residents.

The residents were told that School District 61 is preparing a study on the schools of the area which should be ready by Sept. 15.

Monday night council agreed to delay the hearing until the study is available.

Charles Ryan, president of the North Quadra Land Use Protection Association, told the council his executive approves the single-family zoning in principle but opposes any higher density.

City Only Seven Days Away From All-Time Rainless Mark

Victoria has gone 31 days without rain and the all-time record is only seven days away.

Weather forecaster Bob Morris today said the outlook is for hot, dry conditions for at least five days and probably seven.

"It looks like we could set the all-time record but I hope we don't," he said.

"The forest fire hazard is high. We could all use a rain. This weather is great for forecasters — we haven't got anything to do except keep issuing the same forecast.

"But I hope it rains."

Driest summer on record was in 1951.

There was no rain from July 7 to Aug. 14, a total of 38 days.

In a 91-day stretch from the end of May to Aug. 27 there were only 4.1 millimetres of rain (about ⅛th of an inch), compared with a normal total of 47.4 mm.

So far this summer we have had 24 mm. in June, July and August — and none at all since July 16.

This summer ranks only seventh on the all-time dry list. But the others are mainly at 32 or 33 days and 1977 will move rapidly up the list — unless it rains.

Morris said the same kind of high pressure ridge that kept Victoria dry last winter has returned to produce a hot, dry summer.

"Sometimes these ridges just stop and they prevent other weather systems from moving in. We don't know why they stop but when they do the weather becomes very dry.

"When it begins to move, the weather will change rapidly but we believe the ridge will remain stationary for at least five days more."

The drought has forced Victoria parks department to use twice as much water as usual to keep flowers and plants healthy, says administrator Cliff Bate.

"We are just carrying out a holding action on grass but we are watering flowers, trees and shrubs. There is a good supply of water so that is no problem.

"We are using twice as much water this year than we usually do because everything is so dry."

There are no restrictions on lawn watering and none are expected in Victoria City.

In Saanich, park administrator Frank Andrews said the municipality is trying to stay within its parks budget but it has been difficult because of the drought.

"We have had to water boulevard trees twice a week instead of once a week," Andrews said.

To make up for the extra water used on trees, Saanich has let some grass areas go.

Ottawa Prodded On Ogden Point

The provincial government has asked to be given authority for the federally-owned lands at Ogden Point unless Ottawa can come up with some plans for getting the fire-ravaged port facility back in operation, Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

Bawlf, in responding to questions by Conservative leader Scott Wallace, said that "if the federal government is not prepared to proceed with maximization of the property that it be turned over to the province."

Wallace had asked what contingency plans the government had for minimizing the impact of the $3-million blaze that levelled the Canadian National Railway's pulp and paper storage sheds at Ogden Point last week.

Bawlf said that if Ottawa fails to act, B.C. would like to take over the property and have the B.C. Development Corporation look at possible ways to get the facility back in operation.

Bawlf said he will meet next Thursday with concerned officials to "resolve a course of action that will bring about a speedy recovery."

Bawlf is a MLA for Victoria, while Wallace is MLA for Oak Bay.

Meanwhile, Victoria Ald. Frank Carson said in an interview Monday that if Thursday's meeting doesn't promise quick action to rebuild the warehouse, the city will take the initiative in putting pressure on the federal government.

"We'll buy a few airplane tickets and go to Ottawa ourselves. Let's show a little imagination and flamboyance," Carson said.

"We don't need all this political footwork to build a lousy building on a concrete platform. Hell, we're not building a new city hall."

Woman Must Stand Trial

A 31-year-old Saanich woman was ordered today to stand higher court trial on 22 counts of fraud involving what Saanich police have described as a pyramid sales scheme.

Lauren Gail Phillips, of 921 Leslie, was sent for trial after a six-day premliminary hearing in provincial court.

She has elected trial by judge and jury and is free on bail.

Saanich police said some 400 persons and goods valued at about $700,000 were involved.

TOWN TALK

There was no intention to mislead, but it seems someone boobed in that big newspaper advertisement reminding voters to register by Aug. 31 if they want to vote in the November municipal elections.

The ad, placed by the seven Greater Victoria municipalities, said in one section ". . . remember, you must be on the list to be eligible to vote in November."

That's not entirely true, city alderman Bill Tindall admitted.

"If you are left off the list for whatever reason you have the legal right to vote," Tindall said. "Anyone can register by swearing an affidavit at the polling booth."

He said he believes the city will be running its own ads and they should be able to clarify the situation.

The taxpayers vs. the streetcleaner: or, Is Yale Street (a little Oak Bay cul-de-sac, about 1½ blocks from municipal hall) the dirtiest street in Greater Victoria?

The story unfolds: last Friday the streetcleaner sweeps Yale, but doesn't quite go up to the end of the dead-end street.

The homeowner at the top of the street phones public works and says, Hey, I pay taxes too, I want the street swept in front of my house.

The streetcleaner goes back.

Public works gets a second call from a lady further down Yale. How dirty is Yale Street anyway? she demands. My taxes are high enough without paying for this pork barrelling.

Sigh. And public works lives through another normal day.

Either the rising price of coffee or the volume consumed by municipal officials is reflected in the price tag of coffee breaks to be held at the conference of public administrators in Victoria Sept. 6-9.

Saanich council agreed to underwrite the cost of one of the conference's coffee breaks when it met Monday. The price? Mayor Ed Lum said those arranging the conference want $150 to cover each of the coffee breaks.

Hospitality courses being organized by the provincial government are for everyone, not just waitresses and bartenders, says Helen Beirnes, director of the new program.

"Anyone dealing with the public could benefit from a course of this kind, including media people," she says.

Beirnes, who used to run a modelling school, moved into her new office today in the department of travel building on Fort St.

Decisions on budget and hiring of staff have not yet been made but the courses will be launched before year's end.

Blood-donor clinics rely on volunteers — volunteers to donate their blood, and also volunteers to help the medical staff in running the clinic.

Monday at Red Cross House, 181 volunteer donors showed up, but through a mix-up no volunteer workers.

"Running a clinic without those people is impossible," clinic co-ordinator Gerry Savage said. So he got on the phone to the Victoria Volunteers Bureau.

Response was amazing, Savage said. Within an hour the clinic was running smoothly with young volunteers from the bureau and other organizations.

Clinics continue throughout this week: Today at Red Cross House up to 8 p.m.; Wednesday at Victoria Press, 2621 Douglas from 2 to 8 p.m.; Thursday at Esquimalt Lions Club, 527 Fraser from 2 to 8 p.m.; and Friday at Eaton's Home Furnishings Building from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Among other things, the hot weather is helping the family food budget.

Beef prices, expected to rise this summer, are being held down because of the unusual weather.

"When it is this hot, almost nobody is eating meat except for a few barbecues," says local butcher Bob Gilson.

"All it will take, however, will be a little cool weather and everything will change. It is all supply and demand and the price will go up as soon as it cools off."

The weather forecast: more sunshine.

A truckload of used tiles was sent recently to the Crimea War-vintage Royal Navy officers' barracks now used as artists studios by the Greater Victoria Creative Centres Organization.

Because the buildings are federally-owned, they are not eligible for provincial assistance so the gift of the tiles was made to encourage their preservation, said Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf who is also the minister responsible for the Provincial Capital Commission.

Herbal Tea Warning

ATLANTA (UPI) — Three persons who drank herbal teas have died, and the Centre for Disease Control has issued a warning that natural food fanciers should check out the chemical composition of any herbs they consume.

The CDC said four cases of poisoning associated with consumption of teas made from naturally grown plants had been reported, three of them fatal.

The CDC said two of the victims, both children, had consumed large amounts of a tea known in Arizona as gordolobo yerba, made from leaves of plants of the Gnaphalium species.

"The tea is widely used as a gargle and cough medicine by the Hispanic population to which the children belonged," the CDC said.

The CDC said an elderly Washington couple who died had attended a health spa that recommended comfrey tea for their arthritis. Comfrey is a non-toxic plant the leaves of which can be used as a food, but the CDC said the woman mistakenly picked some foxglove plants, which resemble comfrey, and made a tea from them.

The cases occurred in March, May and July and the CDC said episodes similar to these "are probably occurring with increasing frequency because of the growing interest in and use of 'natural foods.'"

It said the deaths "illustrate the importance of knowing exactly what one is drinking when experimenting with herbs or unfamiliar substances."

Anglicans Promoting Exchanges

CALGARY (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada will attempt to build more personal contact between French and English Canadians in a bid to understand one another better, Most Rev. E. W. Scott, primate of the church, says.

He said this would include the exchange visits of English-speaking Canadians with French Canadians and vice-versa and might be patterned after exchange visits conducted by a service club like the Rotary Club.

"We can encourage families to invite each other back and arrange more joint meetings and involve French and English people together in conferences in that situation, both held in the context of Quebec and English-speaking Canada," Archbishop Scott, titular leader of Canada's 1.5 million Anglicans, said.

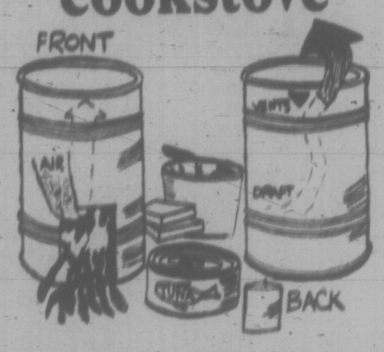
The tin-can cookstove



If your children pitch camp in the back yard and beg to "rough it" by cooking their own food, why not discourage them from setting the lawn afire by encouraging them to make a simple stove from recycled materials?

Cut one hole at the open end of a large tin can (for fuel) and another in the opposite side near the closed end (to create a cross-draft). A few twigs, a couple of candles or a little canned heat ignited under the can will give plenty of warmth for cooking bacon and a few beans.

To take the project one step further, you can rig up a longer-burning heat source that will brown a hamburger, fry an egg or even grill a steak atop the home-made cookstove.

Cut an old newspaper into long strips about 1½-inches wide (the height of an empty tuna fish can). Begin rolling the paper until you have a tight "wheel" of newsprint that will fit snugly into the tuna can and pack it into the can. Fill the tin with hot wax (saturate the paper).

After the creation hardens, you'll have a candle-like source that lights easily and burns for hours.

Got a Sweet Tooth? Leave Room for Sugar

By LESTER COLEMAN, M.D.

I have a sweet tooth. Unless I finish my dinner with something sweet I don't feel satisfied. In an effort to avoid sugary things I turned to saccharine and other sugar substitutes. Now where do I go since the government has proposed a ban on saccharine? Where do the protesters meet to march on the FDA in Washington? — Mr. T.L.O.

Dear Mr. O:

The outcry against the Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharine has reached great proportions. Physicians everywhere and physician-columnists in particular, are being bombarded by manufacturers of saccharine products with statements of angry disapproval of what they feel is the FDA's report on "premature scientific releases on saccharine."

The FDA's report on saccharine is not capricious. It is based on well-documented studies of the potential hazard of saccharine. As the animal experimentation continues, if and when the dangers of saccharine are not verified or are, in fact, disproven, the FDA will be the first to reverse its proposed ban. Until then, you and I and all other Americans must accept the fact that the FDA has no personal interest in this ban.

Now, let's talk about your "sweet tooth." It has long been accepted by nutrition experts that the adult with a sweet tooth developed this from early childhood. Children whose sugars are limited during childhood do not feel deprived, as you do, as they grow older.

Perhaps a national program aimed at such early "sugar training" for children would be an effective means of reducing the desire for sugar or saccharine in the future.

"Where do you go from here?" is your cry. All you have to do is to reduce your total caloric intake and spare a few of the calories for your unrequited love for sweets. In this way you can satisfy this need and still avoid putting on the extra pounds that induces so many people to depend on saccharine.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . Children who are given motorized minibikes are being exposed to additional dangers. Even when driving at moderate speeds in the so-called safe areas, severe neck injuries have been reported. These occur particularly in riders who do not use protective equipment and headgear. PRETORIA, South Africa (CP) — Witwatersrand University's African Studies Institute plans to study black advancement and health care. Prof. A. A. Bird feeders not only help birds to survive a harsh winter, they also give you an opportunity to observe the habits and behaviour of the birds.

The four-page leaflet Bird Feeders says that migrating birds especially may have difficulty finding enough food. Birds that straggle behind or are delayed until it is too late to migrate also greatly benefit from the availability of bird feeders.

Bird banding has shown that once a bird has found a good feeding place, it is likely to return to it time and time again.

The leaflet explains where feeding stations should be put up, how they should be constructed and what foods should be offered. Sunflower seeds are probably the most popular of dry foods. Woodpeckers, jays, chickadees, nuthatches, blackbirds and finches love them. Fat is also important because it is very high in calories. Any kind of animal or kitchen fat is alright.

If you are eager to attract birds to your lawn and garden to photograph or study them, or simply to enjoy their songs, you may want to set up several nest boxes.

The eight-page illustrated folder Nest Boxes for Brds is a helpful guide for building nest boxes for different types of birds. Even children should be able to construct these boxes in a very short time.

Once the boxes are in place, you or your youngsters can keep records of the arrival, nesting and departure dates and compare these records from year to year.

Trash Snooping Privacy Invasion

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you how to deal with a neighbor whose biggest enjoyment in life was going through his neighbors' trash cans, and you replied, "Why not regard it as a somewhat childish pleasure, and let it go at that?"

You are dead wrong, Abby! MY trash is MY business. It contains my bills, personal correspondence, empty prescription bottles, discarded publications, empty food containers, bottles and possibly hundreds of other items that happen to be my private affair and not my neighbor's.

I've never known you to be a Pollyanna before. Please don't start now! — PRIVATE PERSON

DEAR PERSON: You're right. I was wrong. I was also informed that in some places, snooping through someone's trash is considered an invasion of privacy, and is therefore illegal!

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for making your readers aware that people in wheelchairs can enjoy sex, too. So often, it is assumed that because a person is in a wheelchair he is unable to function sexually.

Paraplegics and quadraplegics are generally sexually attractive people because of their self-awareness, their sensuality, their courage in coping successfully with their handicaps, their maturity and their genuine appreciation of other people regardless of whether they are dependent on them.

"Paras and quads" as they often refer to themselves, are human beings with the rare ability to integrate sexual expressions into meaningful personal relationships. In that sense, they have much to teach many members of the non-disabled population, who may be sexually handicapped because they are unable to do the same.

People who choose paras and quads for partners are really the fortunate ones. The parents of those who choose paras and quads should be thankful that they have raised children with depth, sensitivity and quality, and not worry wether their child's chosen mate can walk or "ride" down the aisle to be married. God bless those paras and quads! — LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with an older married man, and to tell you the truth, I feel a little guilty about it.

He keeps telling me I shouldn't feel guilty because a married man who is satisfied at home would never even look at another woman. The way he puts it, "If a man is well-fed at home he will not go to a restaurant."

Is that true? GOT THE GUILTS

DEAR GOT: No. Regardless of how well-fed some men are, six hours later, they're hungry again!

Did you know

Tomatoes were introduced in Europe in the 16th century after the Spanish conquest of Mexico. The French eagerly used this fruit-vegetable not in salads, as it was considered fatal to eat a whole one, but a small piece could be taken as an aphrodisiac. It was called pomme d'amour or love-apple. This combination of the love-apple motifs in the tomato places it among the fruits suspected of being the forbidden one in the Garden of Eden. The Germans even called it Parodies Apfel — Apple of Paradise. Some brave American put it into salad in the late 18th century and it has flourished in popularity ever since.

Another salad favorite, lettuce, was long believed to cause sterility. In some parts of England even to have a head of lettuce in the kitchen was thought to render the woman of the house childless. Because of the shape of the leaf, it was also believed to cure lung disease. Eating lettuce before and during a sea cruise was thought to prevent seasickness and ward off storms.

The North American Indians, who knew all, brewed a lettuce tea which was given to women to increase the flow of milk.

Maybe the combination of the lettuce (for sterility) and tomato (for promiscuity) strikes a balance in the salad bowl.

We've all grown up with so many myths and concepts about everything, we don't want to add to the confusion.

Just grow, eat and enjoy.

Research Careers Urged

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Many of Canada's bright young people avoid careers in scientific research because this country offers little opportunity for them to pursue a research career, says Ron Subden, a University of Guelph professor.

The Youth Science Foundation of Canada promotes the pure sciences through its Summer Science Program, and 60 of Canada's best high-school students are chosen to attend. The University of Guelph is host to half the group for an environmental program; the other students go to Calgary to study energy.

"We're not out to change the career plans of these students," said Sebden, who is directing the Guelph program for a second year. "We want to show them that there is satisfaction derived from studying the pure sciences."

Many of the students will use their scientific interest in the more lucrative fields of medicine or dentistry, but the program attempts to develop their appreciation of the pure sciences.

Socred Adds Name To Conflict List

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The trio of B.C. government members faced with charges of breaching the Constitution Act became a quartet Monday.

Leonard Bawtree of Shuswap, told the legislature he received $2,000 last year to cover part of the expenses he incurred while installing two cattle guards and drift fencing on Crown-owned range land utilized by himself and several other Shuswap ranchers.

Bawtree said he wants his case looked at by the same legislative committee struck to investigate the situation involving Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and George Kerster of Coquitlam.

Early last month the Opposition accused Bawlf, Hewitt, and Kerster of breaking the Constitution Act by receiving expense money while serving on a non-legislative housing committee.

The act forbids MLAs from receiving public funds unless it is for work down by legislature-appointed committees, commissions or boards.

The ambiguous legislation, which critics have labelled archaic, has also snared Conservative leader Scott Wallace.

On Aug. 3 Wallace told the house he had accepted nearly $200 in expense money last year to cover hotel and travel bills incurred while a member of the steering committee for the non-legislative B.C. Conference on the Family.

Wallace said he intended to take himself to court and his lawyer, Hugh Ladner of Kelowna, is initiating that action.

Ladner said Friday a suit has been launched against Attorney-General Garde Gardom and added Monday he expected the matter to be before the courts in September.

A spokesman in the attorney-general's department, however, said the process of proceeding to the B.C. Supreme Court usually takes not less than one year.

The spokesman said a writ from Wallace has been received and the next step is to seek a preliminary judgment as to whether the matter falls within the jurisdiction of the courts.

Gardom has said that because of precedent and tradition breaches of the Constitution Act are issues to be dealt with by the legislature.

An 11-member committee was struck last month to delve into questions regarding the act involving Bawlf, Hewitt and Kerster, but the committee's hearings have been stalled by an opposition boycott.

Wallace, Liberal leader Gibson and the two NDP members are refusing to take part because they say the government majority will result in biased hearings.

Bawtree says, however, he wants his case to go before that committee.

He said he considers his possible breach of the legislation a serious matter, but doubts he could feel the full weight of the law because of his actions.

The Constitution Act provides for fines of up to $500 a day for each day an MLA sits in the house after the breach has occurred and may force a member to give up his seat.

"I would be a little surprised if I was penalized like that," said Bawtree.

The backbencher said that his case points out the need for a major overhaul of the Constitution Act because "even having cattle on the range contravenes it."

Bawtree said that in 1974 he'd applied to the B.C. Forest Service for permission to put up some cattle guards on the Crown-owned range land he utilizes as part of his Shuswap ranch.

He said the service offered to pay up to $2,000 of the expenses and the total bill for the operation came to $2,300.

The government made its payment in 1976.

Bawtree said the fact he'd received $2,000 from the government while sitting as an MLA was brought to his attention last Thursday by Forests Minister Tom Waterland.

"I guess he would have seen my name on some list or other," he said.

'Secrecy Gone Wild' In Ombudsman Bill

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald accused the government Monday of attempting to set up the office of ombudsman with a bill "dripping in secrecy."

But Bill 63, the Ombudsman Act, received unanimous approval in the legislature on second reading — approval in principle.

The act would give the ombundsman wide powers to investigate the conduct of municipalities, schools, hospitals, regional districts, professional groups, the provincial government and its corporations.

Macdonald accused the government of attempting to restrict the scope of the ombudsman by having him and his staff sworn to secrecy and therefore unable to divulge any confidential information gained during the course of their investigations.

"There will still be a need for a watchdog to report abuses which can occur," Macdonald said. "The bill is too narrow to cover a great many abuses which occur in B.C.

"This is not a sunshine bill, it is a let-the-night-fall bill, the antithesis of an information bill."

Macdonald claimed that the bill does not permit the ombudsman to look at documents which are confidential by law or to question government employees sworn to secrecy.

He also claimed that the attorney-general could stop an investigation by certifying that it might interfere or impede the investigation or detection of an offence or might pry into the affairs of the cabinet or a cabinet committee.

"This is secrecy gone wild," Macdonald said. "The public's right to know has been supressed."

The bill states that the ombudsman and his staff will take an oath not to divulge information received "except where permitted by this act."

Attorney-General Garde Gardom, who said he had been advocating the creation of the post of ombudsman since 1966, accused Macdonald of "overflowing with unction."

He said the former attorney-general had "Rip Van Winkled through three years."

"He fell asleep with his hand on the blind."

Separatist Shot

BANGKOK (UPI) — Police have shot and killed the alleged leader of a major Muslim separatist movement on a train.

The shooting occurred when police told the secessionists to surrender and Useng Jehmasor, described as chairman of the Pattani United Liberation Organization, pulled a pistol.

No Backbenchers Going On New Systems Board

There will be no backbench MLAs appointed to the board of directors of the proposed B.C. systems corporation, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe told the legislature Monday.

Wolfe made the statement during debate of the Systems Act, which would set up a new Crown corporation to handle all data processing and computer work for the government and related agencies.

The government majority earlier defeated an amendment which would have required the government to name an opposition MLA to the board if it named a government backbencher.

Wolfe opposed the amendment because it would "alter completely the constitution of the board of directors" which he said would consist of the treasury board, Health Minister Bob McClelland and Labor Minister Allan Williams.

The board includes Premier Bill Bennett, Wolfe, Education Minister Pat McGeer and Economic Development Minister Don Phillips.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, who moved the amendment, called on the government not to appoint government backbenchers without naming an equivalent number of opposition MLAs to avoid any " "tincture or implication of partisanship."

Otherwise, he said, there would be the "inevitable suspicion that the government is using the corporation to find jobs for the boys . . . who are restless because they can't get into the cabinet."

The minister said the treasury board would serve on the board of directors because the corporation would be dealing with the finances of each department and should be "closely controlled."

He also said that the government will advertise for suppliers of computer products and programs.

"We need a complete list of those in the industry who are able to supply these services. We will advertise for anyone who wishes to be placed on such a list of bidders."

Lorne Nicolson (NDP—Nelson-Creston) expressed concern that the "ridiculous powers" conferred onto the corporation would require that even high school counselling records would have to be filed into the government computers.

He referred to the bill as the "snoopers act," claiming that it requires "every file, every document in every government-assist agency" to come under control of the systems corporation.

Conservative leader Scott Wallace, a medical doctor, expressed concern about protecting the secrecy of medical records sent to the government either through hospitals or through charges to medicare.

The minister said the government is also concerned about this problem, and that it would be a high priority for the board.

Advice Sought On Academy Site

Oak Bay council decided Monday night to get financial advice on all possible uses in the planned development of 9.3 acres of municipally-owned land at Cedar Hill Cross Road beide Henderson Park.

The decision came after a brief debate about condominium or leasehold development of the site, which has been leased by Oak Bay to Victoria Riding Academy for a number of years. The riding school will vacate the property by the end of the year.

Council has made clear in the past there is a "definite commitment" to develop the property for revenue and to erase the present high-rise zoning on the land and to ensure the development is in keeping with the area.

But aldermen have indicated there are several views on how the development should go ahead.

Council, meanwhile, with the approval of the University of Victoria, amended an old bylaw to eliminate high-rise zoning on university property across from the riding academy.

A 400-foot-deep strip along Cedar Hill Cross Road and Gordon Head Road was zoned for 12-storey development under the old bylaw, which dates back 15 or 20 years, said Mayor Brian Smith.

The amendment changes this to limit height of buildings to 45 feet (about four storeys) and restricts the use to university purposes.

RAINBOW CADETS BEST IN CANADA

Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has been judged the most proficient sea cadet corps in its category in Canada.

The announcement was made jointly this week by the Navy League of Canada and the national defence department.

In second and third places were the Agememnon corps of Windsor, Ont., and the Jervis Bay corps of Saskatoon.

Rainbow was also the second best corps for attendance, the Bellechasse corps of St. Anselme, Que., placing first.

The Malaspina corps of Powell River was the second most proficient corps with less than 75 cadets, the first being Vangaard of Toronto. Malaspina also placed fourth in attendance, Churchill of Ramea, Nfld., coming first.

CPO D. A. Cook of Vancouver's Captain Vancouver corps won the sea cadet of the year award.

KAUNDA WARNS OF RACE WARS

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Future race wars in southern Africa between black majorities and white supremacist regimes will make "the French revolution look like a picnic," President Kenneth Kaunda has warned.

Kaunda Sunday promised his full support for stepped-up guerrilla warfare in neighboring Rhodesia and South West Africa as "the only way to bring the enemies of the world to their knees."

"Future clashes in Southern Africa will make the French revolution look like a picnic," he told 16 members of the American Friendship Committee, which is campaigning for the withdrawal of U.S. interests from South Africa.

"This is a tragedy."

Kaunda said recent bomb blasts in Salisbury — one on Aug. 6 that killed 11 persons and another Aug. 13 that caused no personal injuries — signalled the start of serious race conflict in southern Africa.

In related development, French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud told reporters in Lusaka that France would fully observe an arms embargo against South Africa once existing contracts are met.

"We have already placed an embargo on arms sales to South Africa. The only exception is a contract for the same of high-seas vessels which will be completed," he said.

BCFP Layoff Extended

Because of the continuing hot weather, the layoff of 1,200 B.C. Forest Products loggers on Vancouver Island will be extgended, the company said Monday.

They had been scheduled to return to work this week after being laid off at the beginning of August due to the fire hazard.

A company spokesman said the loggers won't go back until there is a substantial rainfall.

With the present outlook, it could be month's end before work is resumed.

Markets are available for the logs but there is no shortage at company sawmills. The Victoria sawmill plant will continue to operate with three full shifts.

In today's deal we have another illustration of the importance of declarer's play at trick one. Actually, if he had done the wrong thing, there would have been no recovery.

SOUTH
♠ K
♡ A K J 10 9 8 3
◇ K Q J
♣ K 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♡	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

After dummy's ace of spades had won the opening lead, South appreciated that he was in dummy for the first and last time. The issue was how to leave the dummy: by leading a trump and finessing against East's hoped-for queen; or, instead, by leading a club and hoping that East was the possessor of the ace of clubs?

It was, of course, a 50-50 proposition as to whether East was dealt the trump queen; and it was equally a 50-50 proposition as to whether East was dealt the club ace. Nevertheless, the correct play was to lead a club at trick two, and not a trump.

If East has the club ace, South's king becomes a winner and his game-going trick, since all South will now lose will be a trump, a diamond and a club. But if East has the trump queen, and South takes a successful trump finesse at trick two, he might still lose a trump trick to East's queen. Such would be the case if West were dealt the Q-x-x-x of trumps. And in this latter setup, declarer will now go down, losing a trump, a diamond and two clubs.

At trick two our actual South declarer led the deuce of clubs off dummy—and it mattered not whether East took his ace or didn't for South's king off clubs would become a winner. aHd declarer elected to lead the five of trumps at trick two, and taken the finesse against the queen, he would have ended up losing four tricks: one heart, one diamond and two clubs.

Even if West had possessed the club ace, declarer's club lead off dummy, although resulting in the loss of two club tricks, would not necessarily have doomed declarer to defeat. Upon regaining the lead, he would cash the ace and king of trumps—and there would be a fair chance of catching the queen, thus avoiding the loss of a trump trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, August 17,

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Play waiting game. Costs of basic materials becomes evident — and a major factor in future plans. Digest information. Make inquiries to various quarters. Be a keen, shrewd observer — take nothing for granted. You learn lesson which strengthens overall position.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Low-key approach brings most desired results. Study Aries message. Accent moderation — avoid sensationalism. You obtain what you need, but you may not even be aware of actual progress. Means faith, patience and spiritual acumen are essentials.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with love, impulse, speculation, young persons. You go through maze which includes insight, deception, focus on what is as contrasted to what might or could be. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stress practicality. Refuse to accept "secondhand" goods. Highlight quality. Don't sell yourself short. Those who really care will aid you in climbing over obstacles. There is room for you at top — and now you can verify it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on neighbors, short journeys, mail, telephone messages, relatives who claim they are being imposed upon — look beyond immediate turmoil. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Be versatile — and don't misplace sense of humor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on financial prospects, ability to collect data, to make use of available material. Take new views, highlight greater independence of thought, action. Yes, Leo will play dominate role. Get going on your own — take initiative. Money will be forthcoming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle reaches peek — intuition is on target. Play your hunch. Be direct, original, confident. Express yourself — from the heart. Obtain hint from Virgo message. Aquarius, Cancer persons play roles in your personal scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek answers in out-of-way places. Discard the hackneyed. Eschew cliches. Highlight curiosity, versatility. Expand horizons. Get away from those who are moribund in a "false tradition." Create your own traditions! Gemini, Sagittarius could figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stick to facts — let fantasy, speculation go for another time. Accent on creativity, romance, feeling of well-being, knowledge that you do have friends who will support your efforts. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on accomplishment, written records, establishing relationship with "the boss." Gemini, Virgo and Libra figure in scenario. Emphasis on assuming responsibility, investing in your own "vision."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you've been waiting for comes to pass. Family is involved. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio play prominent roles. Key is to be receptive, not submissive. Yes, you will obtain luxury item — and it won't break your budget!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your natural qualities, capabilities surge to forefront. You gain added recognition by following through on "inner feelings." Questions are answered concerning finances connected with partner or mate. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — could be involved.

IF AUGUST 17th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are an organizer, an individual who can run a business. You are affectionate intense, capable of sustaining a drive, a program — you can inspire others to heights. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In October, a major change occurs — for the better. Travel is in picture and so is intensified relationship. If single, marriage could be on horizon.

Squash Can Rise to Expectations

Squash and vegetable marrows are grown by most gardeners although the results are not always up to expectations.

Setting the plants on mounds of soil has caused losses in some gardens. While the practice in necessary on wet bottom land which remains moist through spring and early summer, it is impossible to supply sufficient moisture to a mound of roots in the average local garden.

Several readers reporting "masses" of flowers but no fruits forming were unaware that cucurbits bear male and female flowers.

The male flower has no seed case at the top of the stem just below the petals. Female flowers have this swelling, and if properly pollinated the seed case becomes the fruit.

Male flowers are plentiful early in the season, but female flowers come much later, sometimes so late that fruits are only half developed when the first fall frosts reach gardens in low-lying areas.

Fresh seed, that of the previous season as packaged for sale, tends to produce plants which are late in forming the female flowers, whereas seed which has been carefully stored for three or four years produces plants that make female flowers and male flowers as soon as flowering starts. Seed purchased this year (1976 crop) will give the best results in 1979 to 1980.

Cucurbits require a soil rich in compost and a lot of water at their roots. Water over the vines, or on the soil under the vines, can cause rotting of both vines and fruits.

In areas of frequent summer rainfall the fruits are placed on sloping pieces of board, or shingles, to prevent moisture collecting beneath them.

Overhead watering also tends to fill the cup-shaped flowers with water, spoiling the pollen and resulting in a poor crop.

The large leaves on the vines protect the fruits from sun-scald. Since the squash family is native to semi-tropical areas where daylight and darkness are about equal, some varieties do not produce fruits during our long summer days and short nights.

For this reason some gardeners erect a burlap roof over the bed to lessen the light intensity, or make the bed where early morning sun reaches, early afternoon sun is dappled, and late sun completely cut off.

To obtain a continuous supply until frost, the fruits must be picked and used while small. As soon as the first fruit starts to mature its seed further fruit production is delayed or completely stopped. About three fruits to a plant is the limit when the gardener is only interested in size.

If fruits are wanted of summer squash for brief storage during fall, leave those produced after mid-seeason, and pick all the early ones while small and perfect for the table.

When young fruits develop to about two inches in length then start to rot from the flower end, it is usually a sign of incomplete pollination of the flower, therefore no seed is within the seed case. These fruits are discarded by the plants.

A gardener in the Fraser Valley living near mountains that stop the progress of moisture laden clouds and cause frequent summer rains, has found it necessary to remove squash flowers from the end of the fruits as soon as faded to prevent collection of moisture and rotting.

Overhead watering in our local dry summers could cause the same trouble, and may be the reason so many gardeners report four and five inch fruits going soft on the end.

Fruits of this length are still usable if promptly removed and the rotted section cut off.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

THE CHIEF LIT HIS OWN FIRES

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Murray McKie, former Moncton fire chief, was convicted today of arson, released on bail and ordered to appear Sept. 2 for sentencing.

County court Judge Chalker Abbis granted McKie bail at the request of defence lawyer James Lercher, who said he intends to call medical witnesses before sentencing.

McKie was charged Feb. 10 with setting fire to a three-storey apartment building and boarding house.

Latest Harmac Talks Fail, Unions Expect Long Fight

Union members are digging in for a long fight following unsuccessful efforts Monday to resolve a dispute which has closed MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac operations since last Thursday.

Depending on who is surveyed there are either two roadblocks in the way of a settlement or only one.

Brian Smith, the company's industrial relations officer, said today the company has agreed to all but one of three proposals from the union.

The one demand MacMillan Bloedel cannot agree to, is that there be no action taken against Local 8 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada or any of its members as a result of the wildcat walkout.

He said the company agreed that negotiations on local issues be reopened and that the company establish a new knife grinderman position in the planermill.

However, Local 8 president Bruce Tunstall said today the company has not agreed to reopen negotiations on local issues in general or the key question of the pay rate for the grinderman in the planermill.

He said no further talks are scheduled but the union is prepared to meet with the company at anytime.

The union's proposals stem from a meeting Monday morning attended by a majority of the local's 1,400 members.

Tunstall said even if the company agrees to talk, there is no way negotiations can get under way as long as union members have the threat of future recriminations hanging over their heads.

The company operates a pulp mill, two sawmills and a planermill at Harmac and the shutdown was sparked by a proposal to pay chipper knife grindermen in the planermill $7.43 an hour.

The union says there are similar jobs in the sawmills which pay $7.78 an hour.

Tunstall said the grinderman rate is written in the contract and the company's proposal to have the rate for the new position arbitrated amounts to an effort to destroy the collective bargaining system.

"We are digging our heels in for a long fight on this one," he said.

Smith said it is hard to understand the union putting 1,300 people out of work in the face of the fact that the company has already announced the pulp mill would be closed from Aug. 21 until Labor Day because of a continuing decline in the pulp market.

He said the pulp mill produces about 1,100 tons of pulp per day which currently sells for about $400 a ton.

Move Set Next Week For Superior Courts

Superior courts will start moving back to the Law Courts building at Burdett and Blanshard next week, Victoria court registrar T. J. Halbert said Monday.

He said court officials are planning on the return being effective Aug. 22 and added there would have to be "something pretty serious" to delay that date.

The last superior courts proceeding at temporary accomodation at St. Ann's Academy is likely to be this Friday's Supreme Court chambers, presided over by Judge Leslie Cashman.

The Aug. 25 divorces and Aug. 26 Supreme Court chambers and county court Call Day for scheduling next months; "county court jury trials are being planned for the Law Courts building.

The only court to remain at St. Ann's for one to three months, will be small claims.

Halbert said there will be some "overflow" cases heard at St. Ann's, including the tax review board.

He did not expect any overflow from county or Supreme courts to be heard in St. Ann's although this could happen.

Superior courts moved to temporary accommodation at St. Ann's Academy two years ago while the provincial government spent $2.7 million renovating the courthouse.

The renovations, which do not increase courtroom space, added two new floors which are being used for offices and the law library.

Main floor renovations, which are nearing completion, will allow the three courtrooms used by provincial court on Fisgard Street to move in later this year.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old Colwood man trying to protect his female dog from being bothered by others was fined $100, placed on three months' probation and ordered to make restitution in provincial court Monday.

Mark Hutchings, 796 Revilo Place, pleaded guilty to a charge lodged by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of causing unnecessary pain and suffering to a dog.

The court was told that Hutchings had shot a small dog owned by Patrick Lewis with a pellet gun when it had come on his property July 8. The dog required $45 worth of medical attention, the court was told.

Hutchings said he had built a fence to keep away neighborhood dogs which had been bothering his dog and damaging his property. He had contacted the owners of the dogs but had not been able to find the owner of the dog which he subsequently shot.

Robert Hawman, 30, of 3608 Happy Valley, admitted he had shown "very poor judgment" in speeding around an accident site Aug. 6 in the 900 block Craigflower.

Judge Harold Alder agreed, then fined the man $500 for dangerous driving and another $500 for driving while impaired plus six months' probation.

A man from Levis, Quebec, taking an English immersion course at the University of Victoria, received a suspended sentence along with three months' probation after pleading guilty to a shoplifting charge.

Dennis Valliere, 18, was charged after security personnel at The Bay apprehended him outside the store Aug. 13 with two packages of batteries, a souvenir patch and a pen in his possession.

At the time of his arrest, the court was told Valliere had $7 in cash and $500 in travellers cheques which were to buy his air fare home this week.

A Burnaby man was sentenced to seven days in jail after pleading guilty to driving while under suspension.

Robin Gonzalez, 22, was charged following an Aug. 14 incident on the Trans-Canada Highway.

* * *

An 18-year-old woman who came from Saskatchewan to Victoria to look for a job was given 50 hours of community work.

Carla Coghlan also got six months' probation after pleading guilty to theft of a $3.50 hair brush from Woolworths Aug. 13.

Gaston Miron, 1096 Shaw, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to a charge of sport fishing with gear designed to catch more than one fish at a time.

Miron told the judge he had not caught any fish off Brotchie Ledge Aug. 1, the day the charge was laid.

"You might as well have used one line and saved yourself the fine," Alder said.

Leonard Powell, 27, of Shawnigan Lake, pleaded guilty to impaired driving July 22 on the Malahat and was fined $500.

Also fined $500 was Robert Otten, 29, of 1049 Judson Place, who pleaded guilty to driving while having a blood alcohol level in excess of .08 per cent in connection with a May 12 incident in the Sidney area.

Six of 10 Aides To Gandhi Freed

NEW DELHI (UPI)—A magistrate said today six of 10 persons arrested in the first legal action against the regime of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, including her former private secretary and her party's treasurer, have been released.

But one of Mrs. Gandhi's closest political aides, arrested with the others on corruption charges Monday, will be held for questioning. There were no reports on the fate of the three others who were arrested.

The arrests by the Central Bureau of Investigation came as Mrs. Gandhi was attempting to retake control of the Congress Party, which was defeated in last March's parliamentary elections by the Janata (people's) party.

Saanich Bans Pinballs

Pinball machines will be banned in Saanich.

Council voted 4-3 Monday night to amend the zoning bylaw to prohibit new pinball machines in the municipality.

Alds. Joe Bourque, David Paterson and Sandy Noel opposed the ban on the grounds that recreation morals cannot be legislated.

The ban means that pinball machines now in Saanich will become a nonconforming use and new ones will not be allowed.

Ald. Ian Cass said police chiefs, the juvenile courts and agencies dealing with juveniles urged the ban.

Cass said juveniles have been known to spend "$40 to $60 in one day on a quarter-a-shot basis."

He said authorities are concerned that machines lead juveniles into "petty thievery that leads to other illegal action."

Paterson said he would consider a ban on amusement arcades but is against singling out pinball machines.

"Next thing I know we'll be outlawing pool tables," he said.

TOUGH TALKS LOOM ON PIPE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Negotiations between Canada and the United States on a northern natural gas pipeline will begin Wednesday in Ottawa, a Canadian source said today.

Negotiating teams from both countries will hold a one-day meeting to discuss issues surrounding construction of a $10-million pipeline through Canada to the lower 48 states, the source said.

The source did not know where the next session will be held.

After Canada announced last week that it tentatively backs proposals for the pipeline through the southern Yukon, U.S. President Jimmy Carter said he hopes the two countries will reach "some degree of agreement" by Sept. 1.

That is his deadline for choosing one of two proposals to move gas by pipeline along the Alaska Highway through Canada or along an all-U.S. route by pipeline and tanker.

Officials from both countries say they expect negotiations on the issue to be tough and intense.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in announcing Canada's tentative approval that the pipeline could be built "under appropriate conditions and safeguards." But he would not elaborate on Canada's exact negotiating position.

Last-Ditch Hunt Planned

Five members of the Comox search and rescue squad will make a last-ditch effort Wednesday to locate a 20-year-old U.S. hiker missing for three weeks in Strathcona Park.

A Campbell River RCMP spokesman said today the searchers will spend at least two days combing two square miles around Flower Ridge where two fishing poles belonging to Duane Bressler were found Aug. 5.

"We've just about exhausted all avenues open to us," the spokesman said. "This is our last shot."

He said whatever happens it is unlikely the search will be extended beyond this week.

He said more than 2,000 man-hours have been logged hunting for Bressler, who disappeared July 26 while hiking with his sister and three companions from Wichita, Kan.

Tracking dogs have been brought in, the RCMP helicopter used, and on Friday police photographed the area using a special infra-red camera, all without success.

The spokesman said there is still a glimmer of hope Bressler is still alive and trying to make his way out of the bush.

Prisoner Hangs

DURBAN, South Africa (Reuter) — A black political detainee arrested early last month has been found hanged in his cell at a police station here, police said Sunday. They identified him as Bayempin Mzizi, aged about 62, who had been detained under South Africa's terrorism act. Police said he was found hanging from a cell window bar by a strip torn from his jacket.

Banks to Make Police Awards

Eight Canadian police officers have been named recipients of the Canadian Bankers' Association Law Enforcement Awards for outstanding police work in combatting crimes against banks.

The eight include Constable Robert Munro of the Vancouver police force, four officers from Ontario and three from Quebec.

They will be guests of the CBA during the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police conference which gets underway in Victoria next week.

Presentation of the awards which consist of gold medals and framed citations will be made at a special dinner at the Empress on Aug. 25.

Munro exchanged gunfire with a suspect during a car chase after a Bank of Montreal branch in Vancouver had been robbed in February. The getaway vehicle crashed into a tree and, after a further exchange of shots, Munro captured the suspect.

The awards were established in 1971 to recognize outstanding police action in bank-related crimes.

To date 64 officers have been honored, two posthumously.

Torture Claimed In Nicaragua

LONDON (AP) — Amnesty International said Monday it has obtained extensive testimony and other evidence of large-scale abductions, torture and killing of peasants by security forces in military-governed Nicaragua.

The Nicaraguan government called the report "A batch of non-existent lies."

In Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, government spokesman Gen. Roger Bermudez said there is "not a single concentration camp nor one political prisoner in Nicaragua."

McGeer In Norway, Debate Off

There was no debate Monday on the government's controversial bill to give financial support to independent schools because Education Minister Pat McGeer has left the country.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom told the house that McGeer is in Norway attending a scientific conference and probably won't return to the legislature until next week.

McGeer's office said later that the minister is attending, at his own expense, the International Neuro-Chemical Society's bi-annual conference near Oslo.

McGeer, a noted brain researcher, was to present several papers at the conference.

The controversial bill is at the committee stage of consideration and only five of its 15 sections have received approval, even though it was debated for three days last week.

FINAL SPRAY BAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warning that millions of consumers could be exposed to an unnecessary risk, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration today issued a final order banning the use of zirocnium in aerosol deodorant sprays.

The metal, once highly touted for its antiperspirant qualities, has been subject to nearly three years of controversy over its possible role as a cause of lung disease.

The FDA noted that the manufacturers have voluntarily stopped using the ingredient although some products containing it may still be in the distribution chain. It said the amount involved is not large enough nor the problem serious enough to warrant a recall.

The ban is effective on Sept. 15. If the manufacturers want to reintroduce the compound, the FDA said, they must prove its safety.

A panel of experts formed by the FDA to study the question reported in December, 1974, that underarm sprays containing zirconium could cause the compound to enter the air in tiny particles which could be breathed into the lungs. The metallic element, it added, has the "extremely serious" potential for causing an inflammatory cell reaction in the lungs which could lead to a growth of tumors.

The same panel later said continued use of the compound would constitute "a very prolonged clinical trial" on humans since zirconium if allowed to continue on the market could eventually be found in products selling at the rate of 100 million cans a year.

Cartel Probe Eyes Albino

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (CP) — A member of the House of Representatives subcommittee inquiring into 1972-74 operations of an international uranium cartel said Monday the subcommittee is interested in having the president of Rio Algom Ltd. of Toronto testify.

Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.), who chaired a Nashville hearing Monday on the cartel, made the comment after learning that Rio Algom President G. R. Albino was personally involved in negotiations to supply uranium to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Subcommittee counsel John Atkisson told the hearing that Albino is refusing to come to the United States to testify in a Utah court case where Westinghouse Corp. is suing a Rio Algom Ltd. subsidiary. Westinghouse alleges that it was financially harmed by Rio Algom's participation in the uranium cartel.

But if Albino testified in the case or sent documents on Rio Algom's uranium selling activity, he might be prosecuted under a recent Canadian law prohibiting release of certain uranium-marketing information.

Atkisson told the hearing he expects fines soon will be imposed on the Rio Algom Ltd. subsidiary—Rio Algom Corp. — for Albino's failure to testify. Albino is president of both companies.

A Utah judge ordered Rio Algom Corp. fined $10,000 a day for not complying with a subpoena for Albino and certain documents, but that order was stayed pending an appeal being considered in Denver, Colo.

WRONG MAN JAILED

BRANDON (CP) — Brandon police are investigating a case of mistaken identity that resulted in the wrong man being held in jail for 5½ weeks, Chief Dave McNamee said Monday.

Details of the investigation were not immediately available, but the incident has already come under criticism from the provincial attorney-general's department.

A confidential inter-departmental memorandum obtained by The Sun is critical of the police for its failure to carry out a proper check on the identity of the man they arrested.

Jacob Ballantyne, 21, of Rivers turned himself into police July 2 when he heard a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Ballantyne's identification papers had apparently been used by a juvenile arrested Jan. 9 on a car theft charge. When the person failed to appear in court later, a warrant was issued for Ballantyne's arrest.

The mistake was not discovered until last week as the trial was about to begin. Ballantyne was then released from custody.

N.W.T. Fights To Save Bison

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Northwest Territories government is trying to save a herd of buffalo from possible extinction in the southern part of the territories.

The government is planning to concentrate its actions on the timber wolf and the sports hunter.

The herd of shaggy-bearded bison roam free north of Fort Smith on the Alberta-N.W.T. border in an area known as the Slave River lowlands.

But the herd, which numbered close to 2,500 in March, 1974, dwindled to 747 in March, 1977, says a government study.

Norm Simmons, N.W.T. wildlife superintendent, describes the report's findings as "alarming."

The government has decided, reluctantly, to go ahead with a wolf-kill program lasting, perhaps, one or two years. So far, there has been no decision on how or when to kill the wolves, but shooting them from helicopters has been mentioned.

In the 160-square-mile core of the lowlands, there are about 70 wolves that travel in five or six packs. Wildlife officials say the government would probably kill most of the wolves.

The government's action to save the bison will also put a halt to what is believed to be the only sports hunting of free-roaming buffalo anywhere in the world.

Last year, the government issued 50 licences to territorial residents and 25 licences to nonresidents.

The Fort Smith Hunters and Trappers Association has asked the government to allow a nominal quota of one resident licence, just to demonstrate that sports hunting won't end forever.

Meanwhile, natives in the area, whose hunting rights are protected by law, are being asked to cut back on their bison kills.

The decline of the Slave River buffalo has got so bad that drastic anti-wolf action appears to be the only recourse, a government spokesman said.

Manpower, UIC Rejoined

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Bud Cullen was officially given the new title of "employment minister" Monday in a ceremony marking his department's merger with the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC).

The UIC was separated from the department of manpower and immigration about 10 years ago in an attempt to resolve heavy internal disputes over power among senior civil servants.

Re-united now, as a result of legislation passed by Parliament earlier this month, the departments are together dubbed the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission.

Cullen said the merger will eventually mean "a one-stop service" for the unemployed person who is looking for both work and unemployment insurance benefits.

It's Dog-Eat-Dog, Teachers Told

VANCOUVER — (CP) — North Americans are in a dog-eat-dog society that won't let labor, business and government sit down together and work out how to get the most good for the most people, teachers were told Monday at the first British Columbia Conference on Economic Education.

Everyone is out to get what the traffic will bear, Wyman Trineer, regional secretary-treasurer of the International Woodworkers of America, told a conference workshop at the University of B.C.

The conference is being sponsored jointly by the Canadian Foundation for Economic Education and the business education department of the University of B.C.

Trineer told educators our society is not mature enough to see that immediate self-interest may not be in the long-range good, nor work for the benefit of the country as a whole.

He was responding to the question of a teacher who asked if the time was ripe for unions and employers to abandon their adversary system. The teacher said Japan and Germany have managed to evolve a system in which labor and business both thrive without being at each other's throats.

Trineer said a country like Germany has a common heritage, common goals and operates under a planned economy which allows labor and business to get along better.

The North American heritage, he said, is a melting pot with many people coming here expecting to pick gold off the street. "It's been dog-eat-dog," he said, "and we haven't got out of it yet. We haven't matured enough.

Sanctions Possible On Quebec–Liberal

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator Eugene Forsey warned Monday that Ottawa could impose economic sanctions on Quebec if Premier Rene Levesque resorted to illegal or unconstitutional means of trying to pull his province out of Confederation.

"If Mr. Levesque tried an Ian Smith on us, there are always economic sanctions . . . and Ottawa is a lot closer to Quebec than London is to Salisbury," Forsey told the Rotary Club of Ottawa.

Forsey—who qualified all his remarks by saying they were strictly his own opinions and not those of the government, the Liberal party or the Senate—was referring to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Britain responded to Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence in 1965 with economic sanctions which failed to cripple the Rhodesian economy.

Forsey, a recognized constitutional expert, also warned Quebec that the only legal way for it to secede is through an amendment to the British North America Act (BNA), the country's constitution.

Such an amendment could only be passed by the British Parliament at the request of the federal government, Forsey said, adding that he doubts Ottawa would make the request without approval from all or nearly all of the provinces.

Forsey said a legal attempt by Quebec to break away from the rest of the country would raise complex constitutional issues that require basic, concrete answers now.

For instance, Ottawa could argue that a separate Quebec would have no constitutional right to keep the Ungava area because it was given to the province, not to a separate state. Ungava includes the James Bay hydro-electric power project, a crucial factor to the future of the Quebec economy.

Quebec would also find that negotiating with the U.S. on the St. Lawrence Seaway issue would be "a whole lot tougher" than negotiating with what is left of Canada, he said.

As well, Quebec would have to contend with the establishment of a land link between the Atlantic provinces and the rest of Canada.

Forsey said he could not imagine the country settling for an arrangement that would leave it partitioned like West and East Pakistan (now Bengladesh).

He warned that it is "absolutely essential" for Quebec to work out now the precise terms and conditions of a legal secession.

FLYING PIG ROUND-UP

NETHERAVON, England (Reuter) — An army helicopter pilot used his machine Monday to tackle an unusual mission — rounding up 110 pigs which escaped from a crashed truck.

Sgt. Alf Elphenstone, a former stunt pilot, was on a routine training flight from the army base here when he saw the pigs.

After a chat with police he flew over the animals, driving them towards farmhands. The pigs were loaded on to another vehicle for their journey to a bacon factory.

Wanted: Right Man

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Trudeau government is having a hard time finding the right Quebecer to sit on its new national unity task force.

After five weeks of fruitless searching, the vacancy is becoming something of an embarrassment, according to informed sources.

A "high profile" Quebecer is being sought but two or three people have already turned the job down, one source said.

The unity task force set up July 5 by Prime Minister Trudeau is co-chaired by former Anti-Inflation Board chairman Jean-Luc Pepin and former Ontario Premier John Robarts.

The unit, which has a wide mandate to "enhance Canadian unity," is to have one member from each of the five Canadian regions — only the Quebec region is unrepresented at this time.

It has been reported that the government wanted former Quebec cabinet minister Claude Castonguay on the task force but that he was unable to accept.

Speculation, therefore, is that other Quebecers approached for the job would feel they were only second best and shy away from the post.

The names of those who rejected the Quebec post or who are now under consideration are being guarded as closely as a potential cabinet appointment and it appears unlikely that anyone will be named until after the prime minister returns from his summer holiday late in August.

Pepin said last month it was obvious that it would be more difficult to find a Quebec representative — since the unity task force is part of the federal government's response to the election of the pro-independence Parti Quebecois.

MEDIATION FAILS

BCGEU Gears For Strike Vote

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

An effort to mediate a settlement between the provincial government and 33,000 public service employees has failed and the union will start a strike vote Aug. 28.

The B.C. Government Employees Union said in a statement Monday the government's "unwillingness to make any moves on the major items in dispute" made further mediation talks impossible.

The strike vote will end with a Sept. 11 meeting and the results should be known soon after.

Mediator Ken Albertini met both parties four times last week and withdrew Friday.

BGEU general secretary John Fryer said earlier this month that he didn't think mediation would settle the dispute and that it would only be resolved with a strike.

The BCGEU has decided that if the members do vote for a strike that one sector of the public service will be picked as a strike target.

The 2,500 employees in the liquor retail stores have volunteered to walk off the job but a union spokesman said Monday that was only one of several possibilities.

Those who are not on strike will be assessed a certain amount which will then go into a strike fund for those off the job, the spokesman said.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe hinted earlier this month that the government would look out public service employees except those in essential services if the BCGEU begins selective strike action.

The union said Monday Albertini brought about agreement on a few contentious items but not the major ones involving the basic bargaining system and a cost of living allowance clause.

The union had such a clause in its last master agreement, which expired July 31, but says the government doesn't want such protection in the next contract.

The union also says the government wants to abolish the two-tiered system of bargaining for public service employees. The employees bargain for a master agreement covering matters common to all workers and then individual component agreements for issues of concern to particular groups.

The BCGEU statement Monday said the government's proposals "would seriously weaken or abolish a number of other key clauses already in the contract."

The wage issue is still unresolved with the union rejecting a government proposal for an increase of 4½ per cent in the first year and three per cent in the second.

Pesticide Safety Tests Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — As many as 200 chemicals used in pesticides, food additives, packaging materials and drugs might be pulled off the market because of questions about the validity of long-term safety tests performed by a U.S. firm, the federal health department said Monday.

A spokesman for the department said it now is tracing companies which have had their products tested by Industrial Biotest Laboratories (IBT) of Northbrook, Ill.

The spokesman said if there are soubts about the validity of the IBT chronic long-term toxicity testing — done to screen chemicals for the potential to cause cancer, birth defects or genetic damage — then the manufacturer will be forced to pull the compound off the market and retest it.

The spokesman said such tests can take two to five years and cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. For example, he said, the chronic toxicity testing for saccharin done recently by the federal health department cost $300,000 and took three years.

He said individual decisions will have to be made by department experts about every IBT-tested compound. He estimated at least 200 chemicals will be affected, and did not know how long it will take the department to assess the situation.

Also affected will be approval for use of new chemicals tested by IBT, the spokesman said. This might be a costly delay for the drug industry which spends an estimated $18 million to bring a new drug to market.

This is the second incident involving questionable long-term safety testing of chemicals. Last year, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration charged that a major pharmaceutical company, G. D. Searle Co. of Skokie, Ill., withheld some longterm test results to win marketing approval for two new drugs and an artificial sweetener.

Drug Rings Cracked

The Greater Victoria drug squad has cracked two major drug rings operating on southern Vancouver Island, one dealing in marijuana, the other in MDA.

Four persons have been arrested and a fifth is being sought in connection with police raids carried out Monday and today in Victoria, Duncan, Ladysmith and Nanaimo.

A drug squad spokesman said 150 pounds of marijuana worth $59,000 on the street was seized from the trunk of a car in the 200-block Cadillac Monday.

Robert Charles Barker, 29, of Colwood and Richard Lee Beard, 38, a U.S. citizen living on Denman Island, appeared in provincial court in Victoria today charged with conspiracy to traffic in marijuana and trafficing in marijuana.

They were remanded without ples to Wednesday.

Meanwhile officers carried out simultaneous searches at 7 a.m. today in Nanaimo, Ladysmith and Duncan and arrested two men.

Arthur James Williams, 53, and Raymond Albert Ridge, 30, both of Ladysmith, were to appear in provincial court in Duncan charged with conspiracy to traffic in MDA and MDA-hydrochloride and trafficking in the drugs.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a third man whose name has not been released.

The police spokesman said the arrests came after more than a year's undercover police investigation.

Some drugs were seized but it is not known how much.

ICBC Paid After Bungle

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Insurance Corp. of B.C. head Norman Bortnick told the legislature's public accounts committee today two of the three controversial claims involving government backbencher George Kerster (Coquitlam) were paid because ICBC mishandled the cases.

Bortnick flatly denied that the two 1976 claims made by New Westminster driver Leslie Wood were paid because of pressure by Kerster.

But he admitted the decision to pay had been made because of intervention by the Socred MLA.

Bortnick said Kerster visited him in his Vancouver office to discuss the Wood claim but made no threats and asked for no favors.

Kerster's involvement in the case, he said, "was an inquiry about what the company was doing about the claim . . .) what Mr. Kerster did was draw it to my attention.

"He said: "What do you intend to do?"

Bortnick said ICBC suspected there had been a fraud perpetrated by Wood in both claims, "but for two or three months we had done nothing, we had let the claims sit."

"But the man (Wood) lied," stated Gary Lauk (NDP-Vancouver Centre).

"We couldn't prove that," said Bortnick, ". . . the claimant was given the benefit of the doubt."

MIRACLE SINKS, ROLLS

Sealand's ailing baby killer whale gave her nursemaids another start Monday night when she suddenly sank to the bottom of the pool and rolled over

But before Miracle even had a chance to right herself, a crew of three volunteers keeping watch over her jumped in and brought her back to the surface.

Sprinkling Banned

Sidney has placed a total ban on non-essential water use like lawn sprinkling or car washing as concern mounts over a possibile water shortage.

The penalty for violations is a maximum of 30 days in jail or a $200 fine or both.

Town administrator G. S. Logan said council hopes residents will co-operate during the emergency and fines will not be necessary.

The restrictions take effect immediately. No restrictions Victoria area. See story Page have been ordered for the 15.

NO YARDS ON METRIC

Oak Bay aldermen accept that metrification — like death and taxes — is inevitable.

Monday night, however, aldermen decided to delay amendments that would see a half-dozen municipal bylaws go metric.

The reason: aldermen want to know what benefits metric bylaws will bring.

While agreeing to amend streets and traffic bylaw to let the new speed limit of 50 kilometres an hour, council delayed introducing metric measurements for things like fences and lot sizes.

"It's Napoleon's revenge," declared a tongue-in-cheek Ald. John Goult, who also said the British had managed to colonize the world with imperial weights and measures.

Council tabled all the metric amendments, except streets and traffic, until engineer Geoff White presents a report.

Pipeline Shut Again

DELTA, Alaska (AP) — The trans-Alaska oil pipeline was shut down Monday night after an oil spill at Pump Station 9, a spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said today.

It was the second time the pipeline has been officially shut down since oil reached the Valdez terminal.

Alyeska spokesman John Ratterman said Pump Station 9 was shut down about 7:30 p.m. Monday after a small amount of oil spilled outside the building. He said there was a "substantial amount" of oil in the pump building.

City Growing Again

The residential exodus from Victoria has halted and the population is growing again, according to a survey by the Capital Regional District.

The survey of seven major moving companies shows 143 families have moved into the Victoria area during the first seven months this year while 137 families moved out.

In the spring, a spot check of the same showed there were 10 families moving out for every four coming in at that time.

The report showed 260 families come to Victoria in 1976 and 195 moved out. In 1975, 378 families moved in and 290 moved out.

The report did not indicate the total numbers of people involved in the moves.

The Capital Regional District released the report today without comment.

Meanwhile, Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Alan Emery said the turn around is "gratifying" but the inflow is still quite small.

"It is far too early for celebrations," he said. "There is still a shortage of jobs in Victoria."

He said the survey deals with numbers but does not indicate, for example, whether all those moving in are retired and those moving out are people looking for work.

"This good news should not interfere with the campaign to bring more jobs to Victoria."

Emery said it is vital local municipalities realize the economy is still in trouble and they co-operate to make land available for industrial development.

"That is still the most important consideration and it is double important since the tragic fire at Ogden Point."

Calif. Hit By Floods

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Vestiges of Hurricane Doreen lashed southern Californian deserts with rainstorms and 80-kilometre-an-hour winds Monday, flooding four highways and washing away a large section of the major artery linking Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

"Interstate 15 northbound is just completely washed away about 45 miles north of Barstow," said California highway patrol Sgt. Terry Hunt.

Boy Inventor in Running

Electronic Zap for Weeds May Win Him the $10,000

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

One of 35 electronic inventions by 15-year-old Barry Cameron of 5290 Parker in Saanich has put him among the contenders for the $10,000 prize the B.C. government is offering for a solution to the Eurasian Milfoil weed problem.

Sponsored by the environment department, the prize will be awarded to the best of the 22 solutions proposed by inventors to rid the Okanagan Valley and other provincial lakes of the weed which is encroaching into prime recreational spots.

The suggestions ranged from steaming to sandblasting to rotating rakes, but Barry, who will enter Grade 11 at Claremont next month, designed a thermal sonic carrier — a TV camera that would zap electricity through the infested areas to raise the temperature of the plants and kill them.

Barry explained today his idea is based on the cell structure of plants which breaks down under heat.

The electric current won't be dangerous to fish and other aquatic animals because there is a ground bar to control the current.

And it won't raise the temperature of the lake because the circuit acts so quickly.

The television camera can also work as a scanner, so it has a double purpose, he said. "And it's economical, too."

Barry didn't seem too excited about the possibility of winning the $10,000 first prize.

The money isn't as important as gaining respectability as an inventor, he said. When you're only 15, it's hard to get people to take your ideas seriously.

"It's only in the last 2½ months I've started to be recognized," he said.

His thermal sonic carrier is just one of 35 inventions mostly involving electronics and physics.

The prize money would give him the backing to get on with other inventions.

The $10,000 would help with technical advancements. Barry says he would like more sophisticated electrical equipment that would make his home experiments more accurate and less time consuming.

Yet surprisingly the young electronic wizard doesn't do all that well at school.

But Barry says it's intentional.

"I keep my grades to lower standards because I do most of my work (on the projects) at home."

He said if he got top marks, all his energies would have to go to keeping them up.

"I like school and I like my projects. I have to keep them in balance."

Other inventors vying for the $10,000 prize include Errol Stewart of Rockland, Ont., who sent a scale model of his dredging device, and an unidentified man who suggested suffocating the weeks with plastic sheets.

Gordon Jennens, 54, of Kelowna, decided not to enter the contest because the machine he is developing has already cost $34,000 and he said it would not be worth his while to surrender its rights to the government if he won the first prize.

"The machine will remove all the weeds, roots, stems and all," he said. "It's something entirely new and in no way resembles a dredge."

Jennens already has a government contract to clear the milfoil from a small part of the lake.

The provincial government created a controversy this summer when it began spraying 2,4-D in Okanagan and Skaha Lakes in an effort to kill the milfoil.

Environmentalists criticized the spraying saying the herbicide had not been thoroughly tested and may be linked with cancer.

It is believed the weed infestation of Okanagan Lake has spread from 1,000 acres last year, to about 2,000 this year.

Milfoil thrives on nitrogen and phosphorous residues of human and industrial wastes.

When Environment Minister James Nielsen announced the $10,000 contest in May, he said if the designer could build the machine, there would be an additional $50,000.

Lum Won't Buy 90-Day Freeze On Projects

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today seven ratepayers' associations which on Monday demanded a 90-day freeze on four major projects are trying to run the council . . . and the municipality.

"These ratepayers' associations want to be an unofficial council and make official decisions. Under the democratic process an elected council must look at a municipality as a whole . . . not areas separately," he said.

Lum was referring to a joint statement issued at a press conference called by the executives of the Broadmead Ratepayers' Association, Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association, Gordon Head and District Ratepayers' Association, Gorge-Tillicum Ratepayers' Group, North Quadra Land Use Protection Association and the Royal Oak Ratepayers' Association.

The want a 90-day freeze on the Royal Oak industrial park, Broadmead's housing project on Minnie Mountain at Ten Mile Point, the proposed regional shopping centre (to be built at either Broadmead or Tillicum) and council's plan to rezone in the North Quadra area.

Lum said he could see no reason for a freeze because no specific applications have come before council on any of these proposals.

Referring to the Royal Oak industrial park project, Lum said this had been initiated by council in the 1960s when Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis was mayor and had received the blessing of the Capital Regional District and the provincial government.

"It's not something being sprung on the people by this council," he said.

LUM
. . . no applications

He refuted the association representatives' contention that they had been denied access to municipal reports.

"Whatever studies we have have been made available but we can't hand out documents that don't belong to us," he said.

He said the Tillicum developers have made theirs available and Broadmead will make documents available on request.

Bill Neilson, chairman of the combined ratepayers' groups, said they are forming a common front because of a "festering sense of frustration."

He said the council "seems to be quite incapable of handling complex development issues."

He and the other representatives said their groups are fed up with a lack of information. They criticized the lands planning and housing committee for not waiting for impact studies to be made when considering large projects.

"Time after time, we really wonder whether the homework has been done before the rumor mills and public statements take over," Neilson said.

In a joint statement, the associations, which represent between 2,000 and 3,000 taxpayers, stressed:

"The issue we are facing is not development versus non-development. The real issue is the desperate and urgent need for competent analysis and democratic handling of these major questions by council.

"During the 90-day freeze, we want a little sunshine and fresh air to come to Saanich. We want all reports, studies, impact statements and other documents on these projects prepared at taxpayers' expense to be made public.

"If such detailed studies have not been prepared, then we want that information too, for it is our firm belief that more than a few of these proposals are being shunted along at a very speedy pace without even the barest professional assessment."

Quadra Wins Delay

Public pressure has forced Saanich council to put off for a month a public hearing on its bid to rezone 100 acres in North Quadra for single-family homes.

The hearing, which was to have been held Aug. 29, will now take place in late September.

Last week, Mayor Ed Lum succumbed to pressure and agreed to postpone an Aug. 22 public hearing on the official community plan from Aug. 22 to Sept. 7 so that all members of council can be present.

Ald. Robert Cameron, a school teacher, is on vacation.)

Council is planning rezoning for 271 acres in the North Quadra area.

Residents are concerned that the 100-acre development will put undue strain on schools in their area.

Last week Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of the lands, planning and housing committee, arranged a meeting of his committee, school officials and residents.

The residents were told that School District 61 is preparing a study on the schools of the area which should be ready by Sept. 15.

Monday night council agreed to delay the hearing until the study is available.

Charles Ryan, president of the North Quadra Land Use Protection Association, told the council his executive approves the single-family zoning in principle but opposes any higher density.

City Only Seven Days Away From All-Time Rainless Mark

Victoria has gone 31 days without rain and the all-time record is only seven days away.

Weather forecaster Bob Morris today said the outlook is for hot, dry conditions for at least five days and probably seven.

"It looks like we could set the all-time record but I hope we don't," he said.

"The forest fire hazard is high. We could all use a rain. This weather is great for forecasters — we haven't got anything to do except keep issuing the same forecast.

"But I hope it rains."

Driest summer on record was in 1951.

There was no rain from July 7 to Aug. 14, a total of 38 days.

In a 91-day stretch from the end of May to Aug. 27 there was only 4.1 millimetres of rain (about ⅛th of an inch), compared with a normal total of 47.4 mm.

So far this summer we have had 24 mm. in June, July and August — and none at all since July 16.

This summer ranks only seventh on the all-time dry list. But the others are mainly at 32 or 33 days and 1977 will move rapidly up the list — unless it rains.

Morris said the same kind of high pressure ridge that kept Victoria dry last winter has returned to produce a hot, dry summer.

"Sometimes these ridges just stop and they prevent other weather systems from moving in. We don't know why they stop but when they do the weather becomes very dry.

"When it begins to move, the weather will change rapidly but we believe the ridge will remain stationary for at least five days more."

The drought has forced Victoria parks board to use twice as much water as usual to keep flowers and plants healthy, says parks administrator Cliff Bate.

"We are just carrying out a holding action on grass but we are watering flowers, trees and shrubs. There is a good supply of water so that is no problem.

"We are using twice as much water this year than we usually do because everything is so dry."

There are no restrictions on lawn watering and none are expected in Victoria City.

In Saanich, park administrator Frank Andrews said the municipality is trying to stay within its parks budget but it has been difficult because of the drought.

"We have had to water boulevard trees twice a week instead of once a week," Andrews said.

To make up for the extra water used on trees, Saanich has let some grass areas go.

Ottawa Prodded On Ogden Point

The provincial government has asked to be given authority for the federally-owned lands at Ogden Point unless Ottawa can come up with some plans for getting the fire-ravaged port facility back in operation, Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

Bawlf, in responding to questions by Conservative leader Scott Wallace, said that "if the federal government is not prepared to proceed with maximization of the property that it be turned over to the province."

Wallace had asked what contingency plans the government had for minimizing the impact of the $3-million blaze that levelled the Canadian National Railway's pulp and paper storage sheds at Ogden Point last week.

Bawlf said that if Ottawa fails to act, B.C. would like to take over the property and have the B.C. Development Corporation look at possible ways to get the facility back in operation.

Bawlf said he will meet next Thursday with concerned officials to "resolve a course of action that will bring about a speedy recovery."

Bawlf is a MLA for Victoria, while Wallace is MLA for Oak Bay.

Meanwhile, Victoria Ald. Frank Carson said in an interview Monday that if Thursday's meeting doesn't promise quick action to rebuild the warehouse, the city will take the initiative in putting pressure on the federal government.

"We'll buy a few airplane tickets and go to Ottawa ourselves. Let's show a little imagination and flamboyance," Carson said.

"We don't need all this political footwork to build a lousy building on a concrete platform. Hell, we're not building a new city hall."

Woman Must Stand Trial

A 31-year-old Saanich woman was ordered today to stand higher court trial on 22 counts of fraud involving what Saanich police have described as a pyramid sales scheme.

Lauren Gail Phillips, of 921 Leslie, was sent for trial after a six-day preliminary hearing in provincial court.

She has elected trial by judge and jury and is free on bail.

Saanich police said some 400 persons and goods valued at about $700,000 were involved.

There was no intention to mislead, but it seems someone loobed in that big newspaper advertisement reminding voters to register by Aug. 31 if they want to vote in the November municipal elections.

The ad, placed by the seven Greater Victoria municipalities, said in one section ". . . remember, you must be on the list to be eligible to vote in November."

That's not entirely true, city alderman Bill Tindall admitted.

"If you are left off the list for whatever reason you have the legal right to vote," Tindall said. "Anyone can register by swearing an affidavit at the polling booth."

He said he believes the city will be running its own ads and they should be able to clarify the situation.

Voulez-vous aider des etudiants Quebecois?

A rough translation: Would you like to have some Quebec students over to dinner?

La Maison Francias, the English immersion program at the University of Victoria this summer for 140 young Quebecers, winds up next week and organizers are looking for local families who could show them some western hospitality.

Ken Babcock at 477-6642 or Tim Arthurs at 477-6911 local 4649 are the persons to call if you're interested.

The taxpayers vs. the streetcleaner: or, Is Yale Street (a little Oak Bay cul-de-sac about 1½ blocks from municipal hall) the dirtiest street in Greater Victoria?

The story unfolds: last Friday the streetcleaner sweeps Yale, but doesn't quite go up to the end of the dead-end street.

The homeowner at the top of the street phones public works and says, Hey, I pay taxes too, I want the street swept in front of my house.

The streetcleaner goes back.

Public works gets a second call from a lady further down Yale. How dirty is Yale Street anyway? she demands. My taxes are high enough without paying for this pork barrelling.

Sigh. And public works lives through another normal day.

TOWN TALK

Tip of the Town Talk hat to Shamrock lacrosse players George Grover, Larry Bell and Chris Hall for coming to the rescue of an injured young girl.

She was hit by a stray ball at Monday night's game at the Arena and the trio immediately halted their practice session to get medical help.

The girl was bruised but okay.

Either the rising price of coffee or the volume consumed by municipal officials is reflected in the price tag of coffee breaks to be held at the conference of public administrators in Victoria Sept. 6-9.

Saanich council agreed to underwirte the cost of one of the conference's coffee breaks when it met Monday. The price? Mayor Ed Lum said those arranging the conference want $150 to cover each of the coffee breaks.

Hospitality courses being organized by the provincial government are for everyone, not just waitresses and bartenders, says Helen Beirnes, director of the new program.

"Anyone dealing with the public could benefit from a course of this kind, including media people," she says.

Beirnes, who used to run a modelling school, moved into her new office today in the department of travel building on Fort St.

Decisions on budget and hiring of staff have not yet been made but the courses will be launched before year's end.

Blood-donor clinics rely on volunteers — volunteers to donate their blood, and also volunteers to help the medical staff in running the clinic.

Monday at Red Cross House, 181 volunteer donors showed up, but through a mix-up no volunteer workers.

"Running a clinic without those people is impossible," clinic co-ordinator Gerry Savage said. So he got on the phone to the Victoria Volunteers Bureau.

Response was amazing, Savage said. Within an hour the clinic was running smoothly with young volunteers from the bureau and other organizations.

Clinics continue throughout this week: Today at Red Cross House up to 8 p.m.; Wednesday at Victoria Press, 2621 Douglas from 2 to 8 p.m.; Thursday at Esquimalt Lions Club, 527 Fraser from 2 to 8 p.m.; and Friday at Eaton's Home Furnishings Building from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Among other things, the hot weather is helping the family food budget.

Beef prices, expected to rise this summer, are being held down because of the unusual weather.

"When it is this hot, almost nobody is eating meat except for a few barbecues," says local butcher Bob Gilson.

"All it will take, however, will be a little cool weather and everything will change. It is all supply and demand and the price will go up as soon as it cools off."

The weather forecast: more sunshine.

Esquimalt's century-old Signal Hill barracks buildings will get new roofs thanks to hand-me-down tiles from the Legislative buildings.

A truckload of used tiles was sent recently to the Crimea War-vintage Royal Navy officers' barracks now used as artists studios by the Greater Victoria Creative Centres Organization.

Because the buildings are federally-owned, they are not eligible for provincial assistance so the gift of the tiles was made to encourage their preservation, said Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf who is also the minister responsible for the Provincial Capitals Commission.
